The Constitutional Celebration in Philadelphia.

The commission appointed to arrange for a centennial celebration in Philadelphia, on September 17, of the signing of the United States Constitution, have provided for the delivery of an oration by Mr. Justice Miller, of the Supreme Court of the United States, and a poem by a national poet on the theme of the celebration.

There will be a grand industrial processional display, which will be complete and imposing. There will be a military display in which the United States will be represented by each branch of its military and naval service, commanded by the General of the Army; the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia will be represented by their militia and volunteer service. The President of the United States will preside in person. Invitations to participate in the celebration have been extended to the President of the United States and his Cabinet, to the Federal judiciary, to the United States senators and members of Congress, to the representatives of all departments of the Federal Government, to the governor of each State and Territory, to the judiciaries and legislatures of the same, and to the representatives of the several departments thereof; to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and the resident representatives of the foreign governments having friendly relations with the United States. Judge Agnew on the License Question.

Judge Agnew's Beaver Falls letter of March 25, 1887, on the Schlaudecker case, published in this paper recently, having, at the time of its first appearance, been criticised by the Beaver Argus and Radical, the subjoined reply of the Judge appeared in the Butler Citizen. The prefatory comments of Editor Negley, himself a lawyer of over thirty years experience, will certainly carry weight. We give both comments and letter:

JUDGE AGNEW'S REPLY.

Some two or three weeks ago we published in the Citizen a letter addressed by Judge Agnew to a meeting of his fellow-citizens held at Beaver Falls, Pa. This letter was regarded as a very important and able one on the license question. Coming from the author of the oft-misquoted "Schlaudecker case," we conceived that he had very satisfactorily shown that the judicial discretion spoken of in that case, to be used by the Courts in the granting of licenses, was a very different one from the duties of the courts under the law of 1867, where the number and characters of the petitioners for and remonstrants against license were mainly to be considered, as more recently defined by the Supreme Court in the Reed case. But the Beaver Argus and Radical undertook to criticise the letter and the following is Judge Agnew's reply to that criticism. We copy his reply as written for the Rochester (Pa.) Daily Argus, and as found in the Beaver Falls Daily Tribune, of April 9. It does seem to us that in this reply Judge Agnew leaves no ground for any court to stand upon that grants licenses over the heads of a majority of the people of a place interested, as expressed in their remonstrances to the court. We invite a careful reading of what he says, as it covers all points that just now happen to be discussed in our community:—

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

MR. EDITOR: Your kind editorial on my letter to the Beaver Falls meeting is quite flattering. It is also pleasant to see the versatility with which you have exchanged the editorial tripod for the judicial robe. Your remarkable similarity of style as editorial judge and editorial reporter would almost induce us to suppose that the editor and the judge had exchanged places, only we know that the editor would not suffer, and the judge would not descend, to write under cover.

Now, as you have taken up the role of a judicial critic, judicial fairness admits of a comment on the criticism. The first is that you have failed in judicial discrimination. If one side is wrong it does not follow that the other is right. Both may be wrong, or partially right and partially wrong. Thus, if Mr. Stranahan contended that the court must look solely at the necessity for selling liquors, and not the necessity of the hotel, he is wrong. The court must look at both, but if the evil of selling intoxicating drinks at that hotel overbalances the necessity for the hotel as such, the act of 1867 required the license to be refused. So Judge Wickham is clearly wrong if he looks wholly at the necessity of the hotel, and disregards the greater evils of selling intoxicating drinks there, as shown by the evidence of remonstrances under the act of 1867. The Supreme Court says that the act "prescribes the method by which the necessity shall be ascertained."

Next, you have omitted entirely to notice that Schlaudecker's license, as proved by the record, was refused on other evidence, and not on the evidence of remonstrances, and therefore that case is no authority for granting a license against the weight of the remonstrances, under the act of 1867. A blundering lawyer may confound cases, but a good judge never does.

So you do what a fair minded lawyer or judge never does, viz: you apply ply the language of my opinion in Schlaudecker's case to another wholly different from the one I was considering It is not judicial, indeed it is not fair, to distort language to meet a different question.

You also err in criticising my statement that the act of 1867 still regards the necessity of a hotel as an element of decision. You ought to have gone further and said that I regard both elements—the necessity of the hotel, and the evil and injury of selling intoxicatinn drinks in that hotel—as essential to a just decision; and if, in weighing those, the evils of the latter over-balance the necessity for the former, the act of 1867 (which the Supreme Court says, prescribes the rule of determination) requires the license to be refused.

Now, as a judge, you ought to have noticed that the Act of 1867 says nothing about the other evidence contained in former laws, but on the contrary puts the decision of the court wholly on the petitions for and remonstrances against the application. Suppose we read the first section of the act of 1867, viz: "That when an application is made to any court of Quarter Sessions for license to sell intoxicating drinks, it shall be lawful for said court to hear petitions in addition to that of the applicant in favor of, and remonstrances against the application for such license, and in all cases to refuse the same, whenever, in the opinion of the court, having due regard for the number and character of the petitioners for and against such application, such license is not necessary for the accommodation of the public and entertainment of strangers and travelers."

Can there be anything plainer than this? I have used italics to make it plain.

Now, when the act of 1867 says nothing about other evidence or facts but prescribes the duty of the court solely upon the petitions and remonstrances, do you not see how my language in Schlaudecker's case is distorted when you say I said: "It is the duty of the court, therefore, to hear and determine each case on its evidence and facts, meaning, of course, all the evidence and all the facts, not simply that portion of them embraced in the petitions and remonstrances." Now, I meant no such thing, for that case was decided on other evidence and facts, and not on petitions and remonstrances, and that I showed by the record in my letter.

It is true the act of 1867 existed when the opinion was written, but it is wholly untrue that my opinion had any reference to the evidence of petitions and remonstrances under the act of 1867. It is true also that Common Pleas judges have differed in the interpretation of the act. But the reason is obvious. Their personal opinions often guided them. Some granted nearly all licenses, others refused nearly all. No wonder that the legislature now finds it necessary to compel judges to observe the act of 1867. Besides, until the case of Reed came up from Washington there has been no opinion of the Supreme Court to guide them on the effect of remonstrances.

As editorial reporter you say Judge Wickham stated this opinion was only a dictum. But what did the Supreme Court say? "We see that the petitions and remonstrances are for the purpose of determining, without regard to the character of the applicant, whether such license is or is not a matter of public necessity. Furthermore, the Legislature has prescribed the method by which the necessity shall be ascertained, that is by the number and character of those petitioning for or against such application."

This is no dictum, but a decision, on the very point made before the court. The fact that the case finally went off on the ground that the plaintiff had no remedy by writ of certiorari did not change the nature of the decision on the question made. The court frequently decides upon the errors assigned, and yet finally dismisses the case on other grounds. A dictum is something said by a judge outside of the question to be decided.

As to counting names, the argument is evasive. The cause has regard to character as well as number of names. It would be a legal outrage to grant a license in disregard of the fact of a great evil evidenced by the largest number and names of the best men in the community asserting by earnest remonstrance that the selling of intoxicating drinks at the particular hotel would be an unmitigated evil. As a judge you will agree with me that the "prescribed method" of the act of 1867 cannot be so disregarded. It would be contrary to good sense, sound law, moral fitness and the public welfare, so to disregard the law. I feel assured that as an editor, your own good sense as a temperance man would forbid a disregard of a rule of discision intended for the public good, and to avert the terrible evils and crimes of drunkenness.

An Infant Murder.

Although we have always regarded the manner in which they execute justice in the South as barbarous and think they have honestly earned the appellation of "the barbarous States," yet we have learned with amazement of the fact of an infant child of eleven years being placed on trial for murder, and not only placed on trial but actually convicted and sentenced to be hung by the court. In noticing this burlesque upon justice the New York Tribune justly says:

The case of the eleven-year-old colored child who has been tried by a South Carolina jury, found guilty of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to be hanged, has naturally excited a good deal of interest. What kind of laws they have in South Carolina is the first perplexity, the putting to the bar of an infant being in itself so strange a circumstance as to imply the existence in the State concerned of a system of of jurisprudence differing fundamentally from that to which the majority of the American people are accustomed. It is true that when the moral code by which the offences of colored people at the South have usually been judged is taken into account, it may be regarded as a concession to civilized ideas that this child has been tried at all. Perhaps the more customary method would have been to lynch her promptly without troubling the courts, and perhaps also it would have been thought an evidence of exceptional humanity if she had simply been hanged and not burned alive. There are so many local peculiarities of view on these questions at the South that it is difficult to know just how the trial and conviction of the little colored girl would strike an average Southern mind. But it is not hard to realize how an average Northern mind regards the case.

Certainly the deed of the little prisoner was most wicked and cruel. Being entrusted with the care of a white baby and becoming tired of her charge, she killed the poor infant by giving it concentrated lye. Beyond question this was an abominable thing to do, and had the offender been an adult the most rigorous punishment would have been called for. But a child of eleven cannot be held to the responsibility of a grown up person. She is in law and in fact an infant, and all the more infantile because belonging to a backward and partially developed race. The only presumption admissible in the case is that the girl in killing the baby was irresponsible; that she did not and could not realize what she was doing. Moreover (and this renders the proceedings had in the case more remarkable), it is said that the little criminal is only half witted. Fancy putting a half idiot eleven years of age on trial for her life. Fancy all the machinery of a court being employed for the conviction of such a creature. Fancy 12 grown men sitting solemnly to hear the evidence and to determine the measure of her guilt. Fancy a prosecuting attorney denouncing this half-witted infant, and in the name of the people of South Carolina demanding her life as an offering to justice. Could a grimmer, sadder travesty be presented? Then the finding of the verdict. An idiot infant declared guilty of murder in the first degree, which of course implies conscious malice, intelligent premeditation and all the train of vigorous and sane cerebral processes which go to constitute the malignant intent in the most hardened criminals.

While this little ignorant child of nature stood playing with a string of beads as sentence of death was being pronounced upon her, wondering no doubt what that grim fellow perched up there was talking about, surely they must be curious people in that part of South Carolina not to have been struck by the hideous absurdity and unreason of the whole proceedings. Possibly they were blinded by race prejudice. Possibly they thought only of the fact that a colored child had killed a white one. Even then, however, it is difficult to understand how the age and mental condition of the prisoner should have escaped notice, and how the laws of the State can have been strained so as to give even the semblance of legality to the trial. It is reported that since the condemnation of the child there has been a reaction of feeling, and that efforts are being made to procure a commutation of the sentence. This also is singular. It appears to imply that some vigorous abnormal action is necessary to prevent the hanging of a child in the so-called civilized State of South Carolina. Are the South Carolinians willing to let it go upon the record that child-hanging is one of their institutions, and that they are too rhadamanthine in their peculiar justice to make an exception in the case of a half-witted child? are they willing that a sheriff of their state, clothed with all the dignity of law, shall take this little child in his arms perhaps still laughing, prattling and playing with her string of beads, and place her on the fatal trap under the dangling rope, still unconscious of harm and perhaps still wondering in her half clouded mind what all this solemn pageant means? Or if a glimmer of light flashes upon her and she looks up beseechingly into the officer's face and propounds the inquiry. "You wont hurt me?" and he if he has human instinct shall foster an illusion by saying, "No, little one; no one shall hurt you. This is all a play and will soon be over, don't be afraid." Then the negro preacher prays God to take this little soul into his kingdom and Christian men and women the world over shudder with horror.

There are a great many people at the North awaiting to see the end or have these questions answered, with an anxiety and emotion which may perhaps seem foolishly sentimental to the kind of men who see nothing incongruous, unjust or inhuman in the trial for murder of a half-idiot child of eleven years.

About McGarigle.

CHICAGO, August 1.—A late dispatch from Port Huron, Mich., gives another and quite different account of McGarigle's landing in Canada. It states that when the tug Orient approached the schooner Blake, which was last in the tow of four vessels, the schooner Marsh next ahead, dropped the tow-line and the Blake dropped rapidly astern. Her captain rushed forward, together with his crew, and raised a tremendous row for a few minutes, distracting the attention of those on board the tug.

Meanwhile McGarigle, who had been transferred to the Marsh in the Straits, as reported some days ago, was bundled into a yawl and hastily sculled ashore. When the officers on the tug discovered the ruse every effort was made to catch the yawl, but it got into shoal water safely before they could reach it. McGarigle jumped ashore and ran rapidly up the street, while the crews of the schooners jeered at the men on the tug.

A telegram from Sarnia, Ont., filed at 1 o'clock this morning, says instructions have been received from State's Attorney Grinnell, of Chicago, and the chief of police, to arrest McGarigle on an indictment issued at Montreal. The Sarnia chief of police has not been able to find him, and the supposition is that he has left town.

Dr. St. John, the owner of the schooner Blake, and who is believed to have personally assisted McGarigle to escape, was arrested this morning at the breakfast table by Inspector Bonfield. The doctor was at once taken before a magistrate and, waving examination, furnished bail for $20,000, D. B. Fisk becoming surety. St. John's supposed assistant in the escape, Dr. Dell, was not arrested, although a warrant was out for him. He was found at the county hospital, complaining of being sick. A guard was left with Dell until it could be ascertained whether he was in a condition to be moved. Dr. St. John waived examination in accordance with the advice of his attorney, W. E. Foster; of anarchist trial notoriety. Mr. Fisk was the wholesale milliner who went on Dr. St. John's bond, scheduled property aggregating $2,000,000.

ROBERT T. LINCOLN, "the son of his father," will doubtless be a prominent candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. Mr. Lincoln is not a statesman and so far as he is individually concerned he has no special claim to the position. We like to see the nominee for the office selected from among the brightest men of the day. But he is an honest man, far above the present encumbent in experience and ability, and would make a very strong candidate.

WHAT IS LOVE.

I asked the Sun,
"Canst tell what love is?"
He answered only by a smile
Of golden light.

I prayed the flowers,
"O tell me what is love?"
Only a fragrant sigh was wafted
Through the night.

"Is love the soul's true life,
Or is it but the sport
Of idle summer hours?" I asked
Of Heaven above.

In answer, God sent thee,
Sweet heart, to me,
And I no longer question,
"What is love?"

Our Story Teller.

HE WON THE CAMELEON.

Felina Drake was talking to her young friend Melly, whom people usually called Cameleon. The young lady had broken engagements with scores of eligible young men for very frivolous reasons.

"It is to be hoped, Cameleon, that you will find someone who combines almost everything. I wish he would hasten to the front, or the chance of our getting married on the same day will be very slim indeed. I almost feel inclined to 'will' you to fall in love, in spite of yourself."

"Why, I do fall in love, dear," pleaded Melly, "but something always changes my mind. As I say, it is becoming a positive labor to consider the matter so closely, day after day. It is like skating—love is charming, but requires constant attention, or one ends a complete wreck somewhere under the ice. There's the hall bell now. I wonder if it is any one for me."

"If it is," replied Felina, "let me wait here for you, Melly. I would rather go on with my embroidery than sit by while they talk to you."

"It is some one I have not told you about," said Melly, a moment after, looking up from the card; "he has such a queer name, hasn't he? Anthony Cowl. It is quite a new experience to be admired by a man of such a name and with a character which well coincides with it. Excuse me, Felina dear; and wouldn't it be funny if I came back engaged?" The Cameleon embraced and kissed her friend with genuine fervor and arranged her lovely hair at the mirror, and then swept out of the room. She stood at the head of the stairs for a breath's space, and then returned to her parlor and put her lips near Felina's ear, whispering: "If Mr. Cowl would only prove irresistible!"

As Felina sewed she often smiled. It was amusing to her to guess, every few minutes how the courtship was progressing; how the suitor with the odd name was becoming elated and how the rare young flirt upon whom he gazed was involuntarily bringing him to the denouement which had proved so fatal to a dozen other men, as if the girl's heart were Swiss machinery which could only accomplish one thing, although it seemed so human. And Felina also gave a smile to the reflection that the Cameleon herself was acting in perfectly good faith, and was most eager to discover a genuine interest in one of these admirers; but her good sense and her unlimited opportunities stood much in the way of a final decision.

"I really don't know what to say," the Cameleon hesitatingly confessed to Mr. Anthony Cowl, looking down at her lapful of black lace, as she locked her fingers together. "I do like you so much; and I think your mother perfectly sweet. But I suppose I am awfully young to chose what my destiny shall be: and perhaps you are a little old to be my destiny, and then, I never expected to be a 'Mrs. Cowl.' It would seem so strange!" The Cameleon had a mental vision in which people talk about "the beautiful Mrs. Cowl."

"Seems to me," said her lover, with glistening eyes and flushed cheeks, glad enough to find himself in the girl's presence again after a miserable absence, "seems to me it is a pity to put me off because my name is Cowl, and I have five years more in existence than I exactly required. Life is short, at any rate, and happiness is never at its climax for a very long space, no matter what our fortune is. Perhaps if you married me your happiness would be as complete for as long a season as if you married a young fellow nearer your own age. And as for name you might find people paid a good deal of respect to it when coupled with fine dinners and a box at the opera."

The Cameleon looked up at him somewhat furtively, but he caught her glance as he devoured every motion she made. He became eagerly expectant.

"I was thinking, to tell the truth," she said, "that you kept your temper wonderfully under a severe test; for people usually adore their own names. I am sure I am much obliged to you for bearing with my whims, Mr. Cowl."

"Don't—don't be so gentle and encouraging," he exclaimed, "unless you will let me kiss your hand!"

Again she gazed at him from under her lashes, while her lover was on the alert to spring to his feet and kneel at her side if he saw a permission in her face.

"May I—may I kiss your hand?" he asked, with trembling lips.

"I—was just thinking how very—very considerate you are of my wishes," she murmured, but shaking her head. "I do think your mother is so sweet, Mr. Cowl," she added, irrelevantly; and then explained with a burst of confidence: "You know what a lady would not like!" In a moment she went on: "Did you ever do anything which people told you was remarkably noble?"

"No, indeed. Why?"

Again Melly treated Anthony Cowl to a searching but subtle glance.

"You are the first man I ever met who failed to tell me so," she said, smiling. "But wouldn't you make a great sacrifice for me?"

"I hardly believe I would," answered her admirer. "A sacrifice would necessitate my being wholly absent from you, or something of the sort, to strike a death-blow to my happiness in you. I should be a fool to make any sacrifice for you worthy of the name."

The Cameleon laughed outright.

"You seem willing to be quite honest," she commented. "But, Mr. Cowl, aren't you afraid to become engaged to me, even if I am to be persuaded, considering that I have changed my mind very often already, so that they actually call me a Cameleon? I was talking about it with your mother the last time I called, and she said that I would probably go on changing my mind until I was 20 unless something very extraordinary happened, just as a brook runs ever so irregularly down a mountain-side until it reaches a great fissure which hems it firmly in."

"Well, I shall be satisfied if you become engaged to me," Anthony Cowl replied. "I can't ask you to marry me first, you know, and have the engagement afterward, although I might prefer it. It is just possible you might really marry me, after all."

"I suppose I am very ambitious," Melly remarked. "I suppose I have such a sense of my own importance that I think only of myself and believe that nothing is good enough for me."

"I certainly don't feel good enough for you," Cowl declared, with a little sigh. "But I don't pay so much attention to that. I love you with my whole soul, as the most beautiful woman I could ever dream of seeing; and a woman with a look in her eyes and a tone in her voice that awakened something in my heart that gives me the greatest joy I ever felt. You're just the sort of woman to grow nobler and stronger every year and face the misfortunes of life as bravely as if you were a sister of mercy."

The Cameleon turned a little toward him. "Why, don't I seem frivolous in the extreme? And isn't that agreeable to you?"

"Who dares call you frivolous?" cried Anthony Cowl, springing up.

"Oh, I shouldn't know what to do with myself if I was anything but silly and easy-go-lucky," she protested, merrily smiling. "Oh, I am so sorry! For I see that you would tire of my frivolity?"

"If you would only promise to be my wife!" he exclaimed, sitting down nearer to her, and gazing deeply into her eyes.

"Bless me, I never do that! I just consent to be 'engaged,' and they go to papa and have a talk; and then in a few days, I tell papa that I have been forgetting an objection, and he will have to manage to break the engagement for me."

The Cameleon looked so innocent, startled and half-amused that Cowl burst out laughing.

"Ah, well," he said, "it will not be very hard for you to become engaged to me, then, will it? That is all I ask, with all its risks and possible calamity. Let me hear you say that you 'engage' yourself to me, and I will rejoice very much, and call every day, and leave it to your generosity to do me justice, and weigh my love at your leisure."

Melly sagely shook her head.

"If it only wasn't for Dick," she sighed, sinking back into an attitude of dejected musing.

"'Dick' is of no consequence," Anthony Cowl calmly answered. "Let him go and give your hand to me."

She had covered her eyes for an instant, but she quickly glanced up. She laughed, blushed and clapped her hands in delight.

"Why, I certainly thought that would make you angry!" she confided to him giving him a melting look. "I wonder what your mother could have said to you about me! Did she tell you anything that we had said?"

"She only told me you were in every way adorable."

25,000 Mules Save an Army.

R. H. Eddy tells the following war anecdote in his contribution to the Century for August:

Prior to the battle of Nashville Major General James L. Donaldson (who won honors in the Mexican war, and who died in the spring of 1886) was Quartermaster under General Thomas. Having occasion to purchase mules for the army, he ordered a person in whom he had confidence to visit the contiguous Northern States, inadvertently saying to him: "Buy as many as you can"—not supposing that he would be able to secure more than a few thousand at the most. Some weeks after, just before the attack on Hood's army, General Donaldson, on meeting his agent, inquired how many mules he had been able to secure. To the amazement of the General, he was informed that 25,000 or more had been obtained. Upon which the astonished General exclaimed: "I am a ruined man! I shall be court martialed and driven from the army for not limiting you in the purchase. You have procured many times more than I had any idea or intention of purchasing; but the fault is mine, not yours. I ought to have been particular in my orders."

In an extremely disheartened state he went to his home, believing that such a thoughtless mistake could not be overlooked by the commanding general. He had scarcely reached his house before a messenger came from General Thomas with an order for General Donaldson to come immediately to headquarters. This seemed to be the sealing of his fate, and in a state of trepidation bordering on frenzy he appeared before General Thomas, whom he found in a mood apparently of depression. Soon after Donaldson had entered his presence General Thomas said: "Donaldson, how many mules have you?" With some perturbation he replied: "Upwards of 25,000." "Twenty-five thousand, did you say?" repeated the General; "is it possible that you have this number? Donaldson, accept my most heartfelt thanks; you have saved this army! I can now have transportation and can fight Hood, and I will do so at once."

Easily Explained.

"Your story does not hold together. You say that they were cast upon a desert island, with nothing but what they stood in, and yet you say that they went to work immediately and built houses and tilled the land and slew wild goats, dressed their skins, and made themselves shoes and clothing."

"Ah, but you see there was a woman in the party, with a handful of hairpins, and she taught her fellow castaways how to use them."

"Oh, well! why didn't you tell me that in the first place?"

An Essay on Man.

Home Journal.

Men are peculiar; they wear No. 10 boots and snore. This is what makes it easy to recognize a man when you see one. Men wear hats they are careful of, and carry umbrellas they are not careful of; when not losing them they are always poking them into some persons eyes. Men don't gossip, but they go to their clubs and talk over the "news." Men don't paint or powder (often), but they raise whiskers that make them look like Scotch terriers, and coax hair moles to grow on their chins. Men are not vain, but they never like the young lady who says they are not handsome.

Men are consistent. They like to see the dress of a lady plain and sensible, "hate furbelows and flummery," but let a lady in a "plain, sensible dress" enter a car where three men are seated and she may stand an hour and not one them offer her a seat, but when a lady enters arrayed in the height of fashion every one will spring to his feet and glory in the honor of standing for her sake or for the sake of her clothes. Men never find fault with themselves, not if they can help it. Adam showed them how they could help it, and they have profited by his instruction. Men take cold and think they are going to die, and when you carry them a bowl of herb tea they turn pale and ask you if it is bitter and if you don't suppose it would do just as well to take it next week.

Men don't lead around a poodle dog with blue ribbon, but they chew tobacco, and perfume their clothes with a pipe. Men are always wanting a clean shirt, and when they get one they are alwhys ready to swear that there is not a button on it, when all the time the button will be there, only they can't find them. Men can never find anything. They pull off their boots and forget where they put them, and pretend they remember just all about it, and after they have rummaged around and turned everything upside down, and looked on all the shelves in the pantry, in the sewing machine drawer, and upset your work basket, sit down and remark that it is one deuce of a house, a fellow never knows when he gets out of a thing when he is going to set eyes on it again; and when you bring his boots, that you have found right where he left them, he hands you his slippers and wants to know if you "can't jam them in some out of the way corner where the old Scratch would never look for 'em."

Men think they know a lot, and they do sometimes. Men are a trouble, but are handy to have in the house in a thunder shower, or when the wind blows, and they are not afraid of mice. I know this is true, because I once saw two men chase a mouse around a room for an hour (more or less,) and neither appeared to be the least alarmed. Towards the close of the chase one of the men stooped to wipe his brow and remarked that it was warm—an exceedingly cold observation, in my opinion, as it was cold and comfortable upon the head of the lounge where I was.

A few years ago the medical fraternity of Louisville divided itself into two opposing factions over some disputed point in medicine. Partisan spirit was carried so high that the discussion came very near developing into an old-time Rowan county feud. Physicians of the two sides attending clinics at the hospitals even went so far as to carry pistols in their pockets. One of the belligerent practitioners meeting one day an older member of the profession who had not taken either side in the discussion, complained of the existing state of things and exclaimed confidentially: "I tell you, Doctor, it's a perfect shame the way those fellows do! Do you know, there isn't a one of them that goes around there to the hospital but carries a six-shooter in his pocket! Whereas I never think of carrying anything but a Derringer!"

San Antonio is bragging about its delightful weather for this time of the year, and claims that people there get their ears frost-bitten in the evening.

A man at Florence, Ari., has taken so much calomel that these hot days the mercury rises to his head and he gets so top heavy that he has to walk with a crutch.

The streets at Albuquerque are so hot that small boys get vapor by merely following the street sprinkler.

A wild Western sheet that is booming the industries of its particular locality states with honest pride that its jack-rabbit cannery has added two stamps, an amalgamator and a bone-scraper to its already ample stock of machinery, and will be fully equal to the handling of the incoming blackbird crop. It also announces the reopening of the "crick foundry," which is expected to do a heavy trade in imitation blackberries (black cricket tails) with the East during the coming season.

At Home and Abroad.

A correspondent of the Baltimore American, writing from Washington says: "I am surprised at the desire of Americans to rush across the ocean for scenery and antiquity, when we have so much of both on this continent." The speaker was a gentleman who has spent forty years of his life in explorations within the limits of the North American continent. He continued: "Few people know that there were free schools in the city of Mexico before Columbus discovered America. Yet such is the fact. There are many things to be seen in the land to the south of us, which show that the Aztecs and the Montezumas were a highly civilized people, and that they were not only versed in many of the arts and sciences of the present day, but that they were far advance of us in many things in which we think ourselves great. A recent publication of the Smithsonian Institution shows that even the Chiriqui Indians of the Isthmus of Darien were versed in the science of metallurgy, and that even these people understood the art of gold beating, and were skilled in some degree in gold plating. Yet they are looked upon as a prehistoric people, and what knowledge we have of them is gleaned principally from the graves of their dead. Mexico abounds in attractions for the searcher after the antique. Nor is it necessary to go to the land of the 'Greaser' for antiquities. One can find all he desires to see in the States and Territories of the Southwest. As for scenery, there is nothing in the old world to compare with what the United States has to offer Not one man in ten of those who will visit Europe this year has ever looked upon the grandeur of Niagara Falls. Not one in fifty has seen the Yellowstone or the Yosemite. The proportion of those who have visited the wonders of the Siera Madre is infinitely less.

But I think that the strangest of all is the dense ignorance of the local attractions around them which characterizes nine-tenths of our citizens who visit Europe annually. I visited New York recently to bid farewell to a party of friends who were about to sail for Europe. They were all residents of New York and Pennsylvania, yet they had never seen any more of this country than that section between Boston and Washington. Their idea of the beauties of the American scenery was was confined to that which they had been able to look at while on flying trips to Saratoga, Bar Harbor, Lennox and Long Branch. They were going to Europe to see the Alps and the Rhine. Thousands make similar trips every year. Yet the scenery of the mountains of Pennsylvania is incomparably superior to any that the European continent can offer. There is to my mind nothing so attractive to the true American as the mountain scenery along the Susquehanna and Lehigh rivers. A week spent in exploring the attractions along the Lehigh Valley Railroad would astonish many of our migrating citizens. One need not put up at the hotels which have been constructed for the use of visitors, but all along that, or any of the Pennsylvania roads, the tourist will find an attractive stopping place. I will guarantee that, if some of our travelers would defer their visit to Europe until they had looked upon what America has to offer in the way of scenery, even within a day's travel from New York, they would hesitate some time before braving the discomforts of an ocean trip simply for the purpose to see something new. One of the worst features of these continental tours is that the young people in every family soon learn to believe that America has nothing to show them, and they are not satisfied until they can arrange to make annual trips abroad. By this means they grow up in ignorance of the grandeur and resources of the greatest and best country on the face of the earth."

Presence of Mind.

"You want to marry my daughter, do you?" said the rich old parent to the gilded youth who had hovered about the front parlor persistently for the last three months, whether the gas was lit or not.

"Yes, sir," said the youth, apparently much relieved.

"Very well," said the old gentleman with a self satisfied chuckle, "you can have her. Here, by the way, are a few of her bills, which I may as well submit to you now as any other time."

"Ah, yes," murmured the young man, not in the least abashed, "here are my bills, too," as he pulled a handful of papers out of his pocket; "we'll just stack 'em all up together and you can fix it all up in a lump whenever you feel like it."

Some kind and simple heart has given rise to the supposition that the lack of cuspidors in our theatres accounts for the frequent excursions of the male portion of the audience to the entrance. Charity for our fellow man prompts us to coincide in this belief and to hope that ere long the edict will go forth from the proprietors of theatres: Let there be cuspidors!

Washington City, D. C., is said to be full of cranks; it is not the only city in the country so afflicted.

The power of a great newspaper is often illustrated in a street car, where, when properly spread before the face, it enables a man to save both his seat and his politeness.

A crank in Savannah, Mo., shot at the woman who refused him, but the ball was stopped by her bustle made of old newspapers, and she was uninjured. Now is the time to subscribe.

A scientific writer says that a man is young from 20 to 40. This may be true in some Arcadian communities, but the average city youth in the United States is an old man at 19.

A champion egg-eater has appeared in the fore-front of conspicuity with a scutcheon entirely unspotted by defeat in his particular line of business. His record bears witness to the feat of engulfing fifty raw eggs in one hour. This young man sets at naught the commonly-accepted assertion that "eggs is eggs."

Not Man and Wife.

"There are some queer couples in this world," remarked a Dearborn street real estate agent. "The other day a man and woman called to see about renting a flat on the North Side. The woman did all the talking, and turned to the man for corroboration. He always agreed with her and did it very meekly.

"Well," says the woman finally, "I will give you $26 for the flat, won't we, John?"

"Yes'm," replied the man.

"And I'll pay my rent promptly, too, won't we, John?"

"Yes'm."

"And I'll take good care of the house, won't I, John?"

"But," I inquired, as usual in such cases, "are you man and wife?"

"Man and wife!" exclaimed the woman sharply, "indeed we are not; are we, John?"

"No'm."

"What?" says I, "not man and wife?"

"Not much. I'll have you know that in this family we are wife and man; ain't we, John?"

"Yes'm."

Why he was Polite.

Two Chicago men on a street car. A woman enters and one of the men hastily gives her his seat. The other one looks on in astonishment; and when the woman gets off says;

"You are growing strangely polite."

"How so?"

"Why you gave that woman your seat just now. I never saw you do anything of the kind before. You must have been struck by her appearance."

"Oh, no. You see I owe her husband, and she knows who I am."

A Railroad Horror.

WEST NEWTON, Pa., July 29.—The through express from Baltimore telescoped the rear end of a coke train standing on the track at Snyder Station, one and one half miles east of here, killing D. Orbin, the fireman of the coke train, outright, and seriously injuring Dave Gilliland, engineer of the coke train, and Sullivan, engineer of the through express. The express train was late and the coke train was given one hour and fifteen minutes on her time. At Snyder they still had twenty minutes to get out of the way of the express train, but the eccentric of the engine slipped and was being repaired when the express came thundering along at a high rate of speed and struck the caboose of the freight, smashing it into kindling wood and plowing through into two coke cars, demolishing them.

Engine 729, of the express train, was derailed and thrown over the dump and is a total wreck. One express car loaded with vegetables was lifted off its front trucks and turned half around. The body of Orbin was taken to Connelsville on the through train. Sullivan was sent to Pittsburgh on Uniontown express, and Gilliland was left at the scene of the wreck. Fireman Reed, of the express train, jumped off about thirty feet back of where the wreck occurred and escaped uninjured.

When the express train struck the caboose of the coke train Engineer Gilliland and Fireman Orbin were under their engine repairing the eccentric. The force of the shock shoved the engine 180 feet from where it originally stood, killing Orbin instantly and dragging Gilliland the full distance, badly bruising him. When they stopped to repair the eccentric the flagman was whistled back, and the conductor was also told to go and tell him to go back lest he might not hear the signal. He was back the full distance, but the express air brakes were not in proper order and the train could not be stopped.

Accident at a Crossing.

RICHMOND, Ind., July 29.—A terrible accident occurred near this city to-day in which three persons and two horses were killed and a fourth badly injured. The killed were Joseph Rich, a farmer aged 30; his baby and his wife's mother, Hannah Newcomb, aged 53, his wife being the only one that escaped alive. He drove on to the Panhandle crossing at the western limits of the city as he had safely done many times before, after hearing the whistle, but this time the train was coming thirty miles an hour and caught him. The spectacle was horrible as Rich was cut in two and had his head caved in. His baby was ground to a pulp and Mrs. Newcomb had one leg torn off and her arms, body and head mangled.

Gen. Hastings was in town Thursday—almost his first visit here since his family moved into his present pleasant home. He and Mrs. Hastings went away on Friday. The General went with Gen. Hartranft to Mt. Gretna to make further preparation for the National Guard encampment. The General informed us that a lake covering fourteen acres has been constructed in the camp ground and on the highest elevation a very large reservoir has been built. Thus, there will be no lack of water for external or internal use. Two tents are especially reserved for newspaper men and we have an invitation to be present to occupy part of one of them. The camp will begin August 6.

Mr. James Criswell, foreman of the bricklayers at work on the Valentine furnace during the past summer, departed on Saturday for his home in Sharpsburg, Pa., accompanied by his family. Mr. Criswell has been in Bellefonte eight months and his family spent the Summer here with him. After remaining about two weeks in Sharpsburg, Mr. Criswell expects to go to Virginia, where his employer, Mr. Witherow, is building a furnace which will necessitate a year's work. Mr. Criswell is an agreeable and very competent gentleman, and he considers the work here one of the most satisfactory and pleasant in which he has engaged.

Mrs. Dora Baxter, wife of C. E. Baxter, Esq., of Charlotte, Mich., is visiting her friend, Miss Sallie M. Hoffer. Mrs. Baxter was formerly Miss Belcher and visited in Bellefonte about three years ago, creating an impression so favorable and lasting that her visit at this time is hailed with special pleasure. She is now the accomplished wife of the editor of the Charlotte Republican. Mr. Baxter is also the Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee of Michigan.

This morning we were pleased to receive a call from Mr. Samuel Tibbins, Jr., of Peabody, Marion county, Kansas, who has been in this vicinity about a week, visiting his father, Mr. Samuel Tibbins, of near Boiling Springs, who has been quite ill, but is now improving. Mr. Tibbins has been in Kansas about ten years and is pleased with that State. He is an agreeable young gentleman, and we hope he will call again.

Mr. E. C. Humes, President of the First National Bank, started on his annual pilgrimage to Bedford Springs, on Friday afternoon. His son, William, and daughter, Miss Millie, are also there. Mr. Humes considers that the water of the Springs benefits him greatly.

Seeds that Germinate Quickly.

The human system is a fruitful soil, and among seeds that germinate most rapidly in it are those of rheumatism and neuralgia. A slight cold, brought on by sitting in a draught, wet feet or damp clothes, will develop either of those abominable painful maladies with unpleasant rapidity. The proper preventive of this agonizing vegetation is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which nullifies a tendency to either of the maladies named, and soothes the aches which they cause. Nor is it less effective as a remedy for rheumatism than as its preventive, a fact as amply attested as any other relating to its curative properties. Mariners, miners, frontiersmen, and others, have ever found it a faithful preservative of health in unfavorable regions, and a benign remedy for malarial disorders, and stomach, liver and bowel complaints. It is a fine promoter of appetite and a capital tonic.

—A house owned by Mr. Adam Yearick and occupied by John Yearick and family was entirely destroyed by fire on Friday evening. Mr. John Yearick's loss was heavy as his furniture was all burned, and there was no insurance. We do not know whether the building was insured or not.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend on this for certain.

Simple and Sure.

The following prescription for dysentery, diarrhœa and all summer complaints, is furnished by a prominent physician who used it in his practice for several years with uniform success. For adults, take one teaspoonful of Gilmore's Aromatic Wine and the same quantity of corn starch, after every discharge. For children, one teaspoonful of Gilmore's Aromatic Wine and the same quantity of corn starch. For infants under one year, ten drops of this Wine and corn starch enough to thicken it. This prescription is safe, sure and reliable. It does not leave the patient constipated, but restores to perfect health.

Grape Cure Establishment.

Mr. Speer, of New Jersey, whose wines have such a well merited and extended reputation all over this country and Europe, for their age and excellent properties in cases of sickness, and are so famous for their curative properties, is about to build a large Hotel or Grape Cure Establishment on one corner of his vineyard. The House will accommodate five or six hundred guests who are to have the privilege of roaming through the vines, in the morning to pluck the ripe grapes and breakfast on them while the cool dew is yet on.

Closed Doors.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—On the front door of the Columbian bank, at No. 533 Chestnut street, was pasted this morning the following: "This bank is closed by order of the board of directors. An assignment has been made for the benefit of its creditors."

There was no doubt about it; the bank had failed, but this fact did not create much of a sensation, as the bank existed under a State charter, and never seemed to enjoy that degree of confidence possessed by the more stalwart banking concerns in that vicinity. It had never risen to the enviable position of a depositor for city funds. The Columbian bank has been under a cloud for some time and struggled desperately with reverses, but it is a long lane that has no turn, and the climax came yesterday, but was not known until to-day.

A few days ago the bank gave its acceptances to Henry S. Ives & Co., the New York firm of stock brokers, of Baltimore and Ohio railroad deal fame, for $10,000 upon their depositing a collateral which the bank believed to be ample. The bank then made a draft upon Ives & Co., to reimburse itself and it was discounted at the Farmers and Mechanics' National bank, which forwarded it for collection at the National bank of Commerce in New York. Then the Columbian bank, an official says, learned for the first time yesterday that the draft had gone to protest.

Present to the G. A. R.

MADISON, Wis, July 31.—Joseph W. Drexel, the New York banker, has written Commander Fairchilds a letter tendering free of expense through him to surviving Union soldiers of the late war, in perpetuity, the cottage on Mount McGregor in which General U. S. Grant died.

There is no stipulations as to how it shall be used, but it is specified that the trustees shall consist of the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army, the President of the Mt. McGregor Railway and such other persons as Mr. Drexel or his successor as President of Drexel and Morgan Banking Company may designate Commander-in-chief Fairchild has laid the generous proposition before the Executive Committee of the National Council of Administration of the Grand Army, which is now in correspondence with regard to it.

Belgium May be Chosen.

LONDON, Aug. 1—Despite the censure that the Belgian chamber of deputies has placed upon General Von Der Smyssen, and the subsequent apology demanded from that officer for his publicly-expressed criticisms of the chambers' proceedings, there is one suggestion contained in the fiery officer's words that may be adopted by the government. In the general's address to the army, when he denounced the rejection by the chamber of the personal military service bill, he said that Belgium would be obliged to depend upon her army and defenses for her future independence and honor. That the government will improve the suggestion seems exceedingly probable, judging from recent information. With a peace army of less than 50,000 men, and with frontier lines not well protected, this sturdy little portion of the low countries might easily become the battle field of the continent in our day as it was in the seventeenth century.

The Belgian government, aware of the exceeding narrowness of Europe's peace lines, see the advisability of placing their country somewhat on an equality with her neighbors. They appreciate that if France was attacked by Germany, Belgium would be likely to be made an entrance to the Gaul's domain and vice versa. Belgium possesses no formidable fortresses on any of her frontiers, but an effort will be made to strengthen them somewhat and to increase the army. Quietly and deliberately this work will be done, for another danger threatens her. If the powers feared any interference in their plans or found that the off-shoot of the Netherlands was likely to become at all a formidable enemy or rival, some pretext might be found for swallowing the cause of such an untimely annoyance.

Kentucky Elections,

CINCINNATI, August 2.—Kentucky election news is slow in coming and is fragmentary.

In Fleming county, while the democrats carry the state ticket by 200 majority, their candidate for representative is defeated by the republicans by 600 majority.

In Mercer county, Phil. B. Thomas, Sr., is defeated for legislature by D. J. Carey, republican-prohibitionist, by 200 majority. The vote for Fox, prohibitionist, for governor, in the county, will be 400 or 500. Women were at the polls working in the interest of the prohibition candidates.

In Jessamine county there was much excitement and a very close vote. It is claimed that the democratic candidate for legislature is defeated by a few votes. In Mason county there is a heavy republican gain. In Garrard county, which is the home of Bradley, the republicans have 300 majority.

A Louisville, Ky., dispatch says: The returns from yesterday's election come in slowly from the state, but there is nothing to change the estimates of last night. The democratic ticket is elected by from 25,000 to 35,000 majority over the republican ticket, and will have a majority of 20,000 over all the tickets.

LATER.—Returns come in slowly. Those in indicate a falling off the democratic vote. From reports received General Buckner's majority will be less than 20,000 and his plurality about 30,000. The labor vote was nominal except in Kenton county. Local option was the issue in some counties, carrying in two or three instances. The prohibition vote is light. The republican vote indicates a falling off from that of four years ago. The legislature will be about ninety democratic majority on joint ballot.

Attempted Suicide.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Charles W. Reed, ex prosecuting attorney of Cook county, Illinois, who was associated with Lawyer Scoville in the defense of Guiteau, attempted suicide by jumping from the ferryboat Chicago into the North river this morning, Officer Taylor, of the harbor police, rescued him. Reed jumped from the forward deck and arose to the surface just in time to be struck on the head by one of the Chicago's immense paddle blades. The blow knocked him senseless and rendered Officer Taylor's work of rescuing more easier.

When taken from the water Reed's head was found to be badly cut in two places and he was nearly asphyxiated. Restoratives were administered, after which the half drowned man was sent to the Chamber street hospital under arrest. Reed has lost all his legal practice and is reduced to great poverty. A few days ago he was arrested for attempting to rob a till in a saloon in Jersey City, but was not prosecuted.

An Open Switch.

CONCORD, N. H., July 30.—A misplaced switch about an eighth of a mile south of the passenger depot of the Concord railroad, at Hookset, nine miles south of this city, caused an accident to the accommodation train up this forenoon, by which two lives were lost and several were seriously injured. The killed were:

George B. French, of Portsmouth, 38 years old, express messenger.

Frank B. Barney, of Grafton, 22 years old, freight brakeman.

The wounded are:

George Salter, of Hittsfeld, fireman, hips badly hurt and severe internal injuries.

Charles Carter, Concord, fireman, serious injuries to back and legs.

Frank Clark, Concord, injuries to head and back; not dangerous.

Margaret Collins, passenger, Barnstead, injured back.

Colonel Robert H. Allen, Illinois, injuries to right leg.

About a dozen others were slightly injured. The accident occurred near the water tank below the Hookset station, at a point about 100 feet above a sharp curve in the main line of the Concord railroad.

The passenger train was drawn by a powerful locomotive. Frank Clark was engineer and Charles Carter fireman. The train was in charge of Conductor Ambrose B. Brown. As the locomotive rounded the curve and Engineer Clark saw the open switch scarcely fifty feet ahead, he reversed his machine and applied the air brake, but the distance was so short and the momentum of the heavy train so great that to prevent an accident was impossible. The engine struck the tender of the mixed train, and with mighty force threw the heavy engine forward a little more than its entire length. The lifeless body of the express messenger, French, was found in his car, his arms folded; he had been killed instantly, while his fellow messenger, Geo. W. Lynch, of Littleton, who stood within four feet of him, escaped unhurt.

Notes from the Coke Region.

PITTSBURG, August 1.—The last of the Pinkerton guards, fifty in number, were withdrawn from the coke region to-day and passed through this city this afternoon en route to their homes in Chicago. The coke workers made no demonstration on their leaving.

President Himmel, of the Miners' association at West Leisenring, was arrested yesterday and held in $1,000 bail on a charge of conspiracy and interfering with the men at work. He was one of the principal leaders in the strike, and his arrest caused some excitement.

This evening the coke workers commenced voting to decide which of the two rival labor organizations, the Knights of Labor or the Miner's Amalgamated association, is to absorbed by the other. The feeling between the members of the two associations is so bitter that the Amalgamated officials have refused to meet with the Knights of Labor in conference with the operators looking to the final adoption of a sliding scale of wages.

The Ameer on His Ear.

CALCUTTA, August 1.—Advices from Candahar state that the ameer of Afghanistan has caused a proclamation to be posted in the bazar in that city informing his subjects that the British government is holding six infantry divisions each consisting of nine regiments, with cavalry and infantry, in readiness to march into Afghanistan to suppress the revolt of the ameer's enemies in the interior. The proclamation adds: "I can suppress the Ghilseas without them, but they remain ready in case Russia takes advantage of the rebellion to invade the country." The ameer invites the rebels to return to their homes, and says he will not punish their chiefs in insurrection. He warns Great Britain against permitting Ayoub Khan to approach the frontier. The opponents of the ameer explain that in issuing the proclamation the ameer is playing his last trump card, as he finds that the people value his alliance with England more than they value the ameer himself.

The Hottest on Record.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.—The last day of the month was no exception in the matter of hot weather, and the month goes on record as the hottest ever known. There have been but two cool days and those were only cool in comparison with the sweltering days that had already been endured. The highest number of deaths on any one day was thirty four on July 16, and there have been but few days when there were none reported, the numbers ranging from three to a dozen. To-day there were eight deaths and three cases of prostration. A heavy shower accompanied by thunder and lightning passed over the city during the afternoon and evening, which afforded temporary relief, but after the storm was over the atmosphere became heavy and oppressive.

Earthquake Shocks in Illinois.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Dispatches from Jacksonville, Centralia and Jonesboro, Ill., this morning indicate that the earthquake shocks noted at Nashville, Tenn., St. Louis, Mo., and Evansville, Ind., were general throughout Southern and Central Illinois. At Jacksonville the vibrations seemed to be from east to west, but at Jonesboro from northwest to south. In the latter place a rumbling noise was head and the shocks were of sufficient force to cause picture frames to fall from the walls. The time was 12.40 a. m.

Ended in Wind.

PARIS, August 2.—General Boulanger's seconds publish a report of what they say transpired at the conference between them and the seconds of M. Ferry. This report is in substance as follows:

General Boulanger desired a serious reparation—one properly protioned to the gravity of M. Ferry's affront. On this account, he proposed that the combatants exchange shots until one was hit, the choice of the distance to be left to the seconds of M. Ferry.

These conditions not being accepted, General Boulanger's second agree to be content with an exchange of shots between the principals at twenty paces without any word of command. Considering this proposal to embody the extreme limit of General Boulanger's formal instructions his seconds did not feel authorized to make any further proposition. M. Ferry's seconds would only accept a duel at twenty-five paces, with single exchange of shots, the fire to be opened at word of command. Thereupon, as the offended party has the right to dictate the conditions of a dual without being obliged to submit to terms dictated by his adversary's seconds, General Boulanger's seconds withdrew from the affair.

Briefs.

CHICAGO, August 1.—This morning the dead body of a pretty white girl, about 16 years of age, was found under the east end of the Eighteenth street viaduct. The clothing of the unfortunate girl was in disorder and covered with blood. The girl was later identified as Rose Sholka, daughter of Mrs. Albert Frana, of 24 Johnson street. She was subject to epileptic fits and it was proved by a medical examination that she had suffered no assault. The inference was that she wandered under the bridge in a state of dementia and died during a fit. Such was the verdict of the coroner's jury.

PHILADELPHIA, August 1.—The regular meeting of Meade post No. 1, Grand Army of the Republic, was held to-night and considerable importance was attached to it, as it was understood that the attitude of the post towards President Cleveland on his visit to the city during the centennial constitutional celebration in September would be made known. After the meeting, however, the officer refused to give anything out for publication. It is understood that a resolution was offered proposing a special reception to the president on the occasion of his visit, but it was laid on the table.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Sheriff Matson has received advices that the fugitive McGarigle had been landed at Port Edwards, Ont., which is nearly opposite Port Huron, Mich., from the schooner Marsh. This is the vessel to which it was thought McGarigle was transferred at Macinaw a couple of days ago from the schooner Blake. The information received by the sheriff was very meagre and efforts are now being made to have the report verified.

NEWTON HAMILTON, Pa., August 1.—Yesterday evening forty negroes arrived in Newton Hamilton on Altoona accommodation, where they will go to work on the grading of the new third track. A negro is worth two Italians and time and they are rapidly supplanting them on the work here. They were in charge of Mr. Frank Reilly, one of the time-keepers, who brought them from Maryland and Virginia.

PHILADELPHIA, August 2.—During a quarrel between John Delmar, residing at No. 2233 Fisher street, and his wife Bridget, this evening, the latter was so severely beaten over the head with a cane that she died shortly afterward, Delmar was arrested and Richard Peters, who was present, was also locked up as a witness. Delmar is 63 years of age.

HARRISBURG, Pa., August 2.—Thomas T. Weirman, Sr., superintendent and chief engineer of the Pennsylvania canal company, died here to-day, aged 74 years. He had been suffering several weeks from kidney disease. The deceased was interested in the more important of the railroad engineering of fifty years ago.

CHICAGO, August 1.—A. J. Whiteman book-keeper of the Central Union telephone company, was to-day sent to prison in default of $25,000 bail on a charge of forging two checks for $20,000 each on the Northwestern national bank. The telephone company has also discovered that Whiteman is $20,000 in his accounts.

BOSTON, Mass., July 31.—The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions received a cablegram yesterday from the treasurer of the famine relief fund at Constantinople, saying: "Fifty thousand persons at Adana have nothing to eat, and the number is increasing. Other towns ask for help."

LONDON, August 1.—Temple, of Chicago, won the one mile professional bycicle handicap race at Bridlington today. Morgan, of New York, was second and Woodside, of Philadelphia, third. The five mile international bicycle race was won by Woodside in 14 minutes 5¾ seconds.

PHILADELPHIA, August 2.—Fifty societies of the Catholic Total Abstinence society paraded through a portion of the city to-night, and were reviewed by Archbishop Ryan at the Cathedral. The parade was an imposing one and the entire route was lined with spectators.

HARRISBURG, Pa., August 1.—A letter has been received from the marshal of Windsor, Mo., at the executive mansion, stating that the person arrested last week does not answer the description of McCabe, the Wayne county murderer, and that he has been released from custody.

HARRISBURG, August 2.—The barn and its contents of Jacob Deimbler was burned last night near this city and Deimbler was to-day lodged in jail on the charge of arson. It is thought he set fire to the building while intoxicated.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The secretary of state to-day received from Tokio intelligence of the death of Mrs. Hubbard, wife of the United States minister to Japan.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The free delivery system has been ordered to be established at Chambersburg and Bethlehem, Pa., the service to commence Sept. 1.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—Julius Weddigen, a grocer doing business in Williamsport, was robbed early Sunday morning of $600 in cash and $200 in notes and checks. The money and securities were kept in a small hand satchel under the head of the bed in which Mr. Weddigen slept, and the noise made by the thief as he drew the booty from its hiding place awoke Mrs. Weddigen. She aroused her husband, but the thief bounded from the door and made his escape. The satchel was afterwards found near Lycoming creek, but the cash was gone.

—During the ten years previous to the Atlanta convention of 1885 thirty-six new buildings were erected for the use of the Young Men's Christian Associations. In the two years which have elapsed since that convention forty-six new buildings have been secured. This great increase is explained by the fact that our business men are finding out that money invested in Association buildings pays good dividends.

—The Reformed Sunday school will hold its picnic to-day (Thursday,) the 4th, if the weather is pleasant. If not then pleasant, it will be postponed until Friday. If Friday should prove unsuitable, so far as the weather is concerned, it will be held on the first pleasant day. But we predict that Thursday will be all right. Hunter's Grove will be the place.

—Officials of the Pennsylvania railroad report that they have not sufficient equipment to move the business offered them. For this reason they have to refuse large grain shipments from the West. At this season of the year the movement of tonnage is always large, and so great is the offering of business that cars have been diverted from regular channels.

—An additional building to accommodate guests at the Bedford Springs hotel is to be erected there this fall. In dimensions it will be 73 feet in length by 51 feet in depth, and will be four stories in height. It will contain 88 sleeping apartments, and three tiers of porches, nine feet in width, will ornament the front of the building.

Seeds that Germinate Quickly.

The human system is a fruitful soil, and among seeds that germinate most rapidly in it are those of rheumatism and neuralgia. A slight cold, brought on by sitting in a draught, wet feet or damp clothes, will develop either of those abominable painful maladies with unpleasant rapidity. The proper preventive of this agonizing vegetation is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which nullifies a tendency to either of the maladies named, and soothes the aches which they cause. Nor is it less effective as a remedy for rheumatism than as its preventive, a fact as amply attested as any other relating to its curative properties. Mariners, miners, frontiersmen, and others, have ever found it a faithful preservative of health in unfavorable regions, and a benign remedy for malarial disorders, and stomach, liver and bowel complaints. It is a fine promoter of appetite and a capital tonic.

MEN AND THINGS.

OPEN SECRETS ABOUT PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

It is a little late to talk about college commencements, but since the powers that be are so arbitrary as to make the college year different from every other year, because it has its commencement at its close, we will not offer an apology for talking about college matters at even so late a day as this.

Now, do not be afraid that I shall speak about the sad partings between the dear students and the dear instructors and the dear trustees, for I shall do nothing of the kind. I don't believe in that sort of nonsense. A young man who has spent four successful years at college and is not glad to leave it and enter the thickest of the fight in the outside business world ought never to see the inside of a college.

If a college diploma means anything at all it means that a young man has accomplished just what he started out to accomplish. Then why should he feel sorry about it?

There is a grand opportunity for some truthful valedictorian to deliver an expose on this question of "college sorrow," but meanwhile the planets will please keep on in their respective courses just as usual.

* * * * *

Speaking of college commencements, I doubt very much whether Harvard, Yale, Princeton or Lafayette, had so able an address delivered before their Alumni Association as did our own Pennsylvania State College, and the reason they did not have it was simply because this country has few men in it with the mental calibre of Major J. W. Powell to deliver addresses such as he did.

You think that I am too enthusiastic over my hero? Perhaps I am, but that enthusiasm dates back to my boyhood days when I first read his articles on "The Canons of the Colorado." They were published in Scribner's Monthly, and no doubt but that you remember them, too. I have been interested in Major Powell ever since that time, and when I learned that he would deliver an address at the Penn'a State Coilege, I was almost tempted to go square back on my alma mater and give three big American cheers for the State institution.

During all my years of hero worship of Major Powell I never saw my hero. The nearest I came to it was at the State Library in Harrisburg, and then I was so far from it that I almost hesitate to tell you about it. It was this way: I was seated in one of the alcoves of the library one day reading. Not far from me was seated a pompous little bit of a fellow who wore gold spectacles and carried a cane, and who, despite his consequential air, you would imagine to be perfectly harmless. We were not there long until a gentleman approached Mr. Pomposity and, extending him his hand, heartily exclaimed: "Why, Major Powell, how-do-you-do! how-do-you-do!"

The "Major" told him. Indeed, the "Major" seemed only too glad to tell anyone how he did.

My bridge of fancies was swept away. To me there was but one Major Powell, and it was not until I thought the matter over that I began to hope that there might be two, and that this was not the one I was interested in. I learned later that he was not my hero at all, and that once upon a time Mr. Pomposity had been given the title Major because he had chosen to be a candidate for that position in a local military company and had been defeated. He was a major because he wasn't a major. My joy was inexpressible; my hero still lived.

* * * * *

But I mean to tell you some of the open secrets about the genuine Major Powell, for his life has been an interesting one. He was born at Mount Morris, N. Y., on the 24th of March, 1834. His father was a Methodist minister, and as preaching the Methodist doctrines is a rather migratory sort of business young Powell had been a citizen of New York, Ohio, Wisconsin and Illinois before he was fifteen years old. After graduating at Wheaton College he pursued a special course in the natural sciences for two years at Oberlin, and like some of the young men in his State College audience he paid his bills by teaching school. When he was twenty-one years of age he tramped across the State of Wisconsin and one year later he descended the Mississippi river from the Falls of St. Anthony to the Delta alone in a skiff. Afterwards he made a similar trip down the Ohio river from Pittsburg. These excursions were all made for the purpose of scientific investigation and you can form an intelligent idea of their magnitude by referring to your geography.

When the war broke out he became a victim to that very prevalent and very noble disease called "patriotism," and enlisted as a private in the 20th Illinois Infantry. He was a brave soldier. He lost his arm at the battle of Shilo, but served until the war closed. When peace had been declared he once more turned his attention to his scientific hobbies. He believed that there was a great unexplored region in the West, and he determined to explore it. It was not until 1868 that he succeeded in organizing a party for this purpose, and in the Spring of 1869, after several preliminary excursions, they decided to brave the rapids of the Colorado. After three months of thrilling adventure and many hairbreadth escapes they explored its canons. The Government recognized the scientific importance of the discoveries which were made, and inaugurated a geological survey of the country under Major Powell's direction. So successfully were these explerations carried on that 100,000 square miles of territory were made known.

Major Powell has made many valuable contributions to scientific literature, his principal works being: "History of the Exploration of the Canons of the Colorado," "Physical Features of the Colorado Valley," "Introduction to the Study of Indian Languages," and "The Arid Regions of the U. S."

He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and President of the Anthropoligical Society of Washington.

And this is the man you heard lecture on "The Old Education and the New." Perhaps, like most persons who have paid much attention to knowledge outside of the beaten track, he was inclined to overrate the value of his favorite studies, but he made a strong argument for his side of the case. Baudry, the painter, decorated the ceiling of the foyer of the ill-fated Opera Comique in Paris. While he was doing it he noticed a fireman watching him with interest. "Well, my good fellow," said Baudry, "what do you think it?" "I think," replied the other, "that when the house burns down your oil paints will make a nasty smoke."

—An 18-months old child of Mr. Patrick McDonnell died at Unionville on Monday, of cholera infantum. The little one was brought here on Tuesday for interment. Services were held in the Roman Catholic church. Mr. McDonnell, the child's father, was formerly division boss on the railroad here.

—Maxwell Marie, the infant daughter of Rev. and Mrs. M. N. Cornelius, of Pasadena, Cal., and formerly of Altoona, Pa., died on July 23. What adds to the sadness of this bereavement is the fact that Rev. Mr. Cornelius is now in Alaska and will not know of his daughter's death until his return.

—The Grocery World is a new weekly publication which has just appeared in Philadelphia. Louis W. Buckley is the business manager and editor; John D. Whaley publisher. Office 510 Minor St., Philadelphia. It will be conducted on a plan to make it very useful to all grocers.

—There is a business man in Bellefonte who, by persistent and intelligent advertising in the DAILY NEWS, has increased his business about ten-fold. He now does more business every Saturday than he used to do all week.

—On Monday, August 1, in Tyrone, at the residence of Rev. George Guyer, the officiating minister, Mr. Cyrus B. Bathurst and Miss Margaret J. Sharrer, both of Pennsylvania Furnace, were united in marriage.

—A meeting of the survivors of the "Bucktail" Regiment was held in Harrisburg on Monday. It was resolved to hold a regimental reunion and banquet in Williamsport on 20th and 21st of October.

The First Prayer in Congress.

The Oneida (N. Y.) Historical Society has received through Mr. Judson of Ogdensburg a copy of the prayer found among the papers and in the handwriting of John Hancock, the President of the Congress of 1776. It was offered by the Rev. Jacob Duche, an Episcopalian clergyman, on Wednesday, Sept. 7th, 1774. Secretary Darling, of the Historical Society, kindly sent it to The Evangelist, as follows:

O Lord, our Heavenly Father, high & mighty King of Kings—Lord of Lords; who dost from thy Throne behold all the Dwellers upon Earth & reignest with Power Supreme & Uncontroal'd over all Kingdoms, Empires & Governments, Look down in Mercy, we Beseech thee, upon these American States, who have fled to thee from the Rod of the Oppressor & thrown themselves upon thy Gracious protection, desiring to be henceforth Dependent only upon thee. To thee have they appealed for the Righteousness of their Cause. To thee do they now look up for That Countenance and support which thou alone canst give. Take them, therefore, Heavenly Father, under thy nurturing Care. Give them wisdom in Council and Valour in the Field—Defeat the Malicious Designs of our cruel adversaries—Convince them of the unrighteousness of their Cause, and if they Still Persist in Sanguinary purposes, O let the voice of thine own unerring Justice sounding in their Hearts Constrain them to drop the weapons of War from their unnerved hands in the Day of Battle. Be thou present, O God of Wisdom, & Direct the Councils of this Hon. Assembly. Enable them to settle Things—upon the best & surest foundations—that the Scene of blood may Speedily be Closed, That—Order, Harmony & Peace may Effectually be restored & Truth & Justice, Religion & Piety Prevail and Flourish among thy People. Preserve the Health of their Bodies & the Vigor of their Minds—Shower down upon them & the Millions they here represent Such Temporal Blessings as Thou Seest Expedient for them in this World & Crown them with Everlasting Glory in the World to come

All This we ask in the name & through the merits of Jesus Christ, thy Son, our Saviour—Amen.—The Evangelist.

A. M. Robinson, Druggist and Apothecary, Bangor, Me., in a letter dated July 1, 1884, says:—"I have had many prescriptions for Gilmore's Aromatic Wine from one of our best physicians, who learned of its virtues from those who had used it." No remedy ever produced has met with such marked favor from the medical profession. The Company cheerfully furnish any physician a sample of their Aromatic Wine, and not one of the many hundreds who have given it an examination has ever failed to endorse it as a valuable remedy.—All over the country leading physicians are prescribing it, particularly for the numerous ailments to which females are liable. They know there is no purer, safer, or more reliable remedy.

Children

Often need some safe cathartic and tonic to avert approaching sickness, or to relieve colic, headache, sick stomach, indigestion, dysentery and the complaints incident to childhood. Let the children take Simmon's Liver Regulator and keep well. It is purely vegetable, not unpleasant to the taste and safe to take alone or in connection with other medicine.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The Art Interchange, of June 18th, has as its colored Supplement, a very charming sketch, of forest trees on the edge of a pool, entitled a "Woodland Reach," by the well-known artist, Julian Rix. This is a very engaging landscape composition, and its large size, 22x15 inches, makes it suitable for using as a picture for wall decoration as well as a model for students to copy. Another supplement in black and white shows a graceful female figure, entitled "Evening," the third of a series of decorative panels—"Morning," "Noon" and "Evening." "Evening appears with poppies and a decorative frieze showing a bat. The other designs in this issue comprise two most useful all-over patterns for embroidering or painting on sash curtains, bed spreads, or infant's carriage robes; an elaborate and beautiful design for plate decoration; a design of mignonette, for cup and saucer; of morning glory for plate, cup and saucer; and a pretty floral design for doyleys. The text includes the usual variety of instruction, on art topics, the "Notes and Queries" Department being especially valuable to students. There are also book reviews and art notes. The price of this issue, including the colored supplement, by Rix, is 20 cts., published by the Art Interchange Co., 37 & 39 W. 22nd St., New York.

A portrait of General Guzman Blanco, the President and autocrat ruler of the United States of Venezuela, furnishes the frontispiece of the American Magazine for August. A lively description of a sojourn in Venezuela (illustrated) is contributed by Dr. W. F. Hutchinson. That country is exceedingly attractive, and those who have once visited it, whether for business or pleasure, are almost sure to make the trip again. Most of the coffee sold in the United States as "Mocha" or "Java" is raised there.

The Justices of the Superior Court are presented both by the engraver's art and in pen-portraits by Z. L. White. They are solid looking men, for the most part, with a decided development of avoirdupois.

Julian Hawthorne contributes sketches of typical characters, such as almost every American village can produce. As yet the main features of village society have not suffered so much change as that of our cities, and Mr. Hawthorne does good service by embalming these types before they pass away.

Col. I. Edwards Clarke, of the U. S. Bureau of Education, presents an elaborate review of the new methods adopted during recent years in our schools and colleges. The change began with industrial art teaching, and in this line the greatest development is to be expected. Published at 130-132 Pearl St., N. Y.

I have not changed my advertisement for several days so my remarks about coffee have become old. The coffee, however, is all right, and the price low—and sells so fast that I am constantly receiving new lots. The price now is 24, 25, 26 and 27 cents.

I need not meution all my new goods, but I will call your attention to a nice new lot of Hams and Shoulders which I am selling at a very small margin of profit.

I have also just received some very nice jellies—strawberry, currant, pine apple and other varieties—very nice goods and selling fast.

The mess pork is going fast as it is a nice article and should be in every house; every cook would find it a great convenience in many ways.

How do you like my portrait? every eye you see there is watching the market for the benefit of our customers.

Fifth. For the purpose of voting, no person shall be deemed to have gained or lost a residence by reason of his presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States or the State, nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of the State or of the high seas, nor while a student of any college or seminary of learning, nor while kept at any almshouse or public institution, except the inmates of any home for disabled and indigent soldiers, who, for the purpose of voting, shall be deemed to reside in the election district where said home is located. The Ohio Convention.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 27.—The convention was called to order at 4 p. m. by Hon. Allen T. Brinsmade, chairman of the State central committee. Hon. Dan Ryan, of Sciats, was announced as temporary chairman, and A. J. Donalson as temporary secretary. On taking the chair Mr. Ryan made a fifteen minutes' speech, and in closing made a strong plea for union among the Ohio Republicans in championing Senator Sherman for the Presidency next year. His references to Sherman were received amid cheers from the Sherman men. The names of the vice president of the convention and members of the various committees selected by the district delegations at their caucuses were then read.

A MOMENT OF EXCITEMENT.

When the reading was ended the most intense interest was at once excited by Hon. Charles Grosvenor, of Athens, rising to offer a resolution. He is one of Senator Sherman's strongest supporters and all knew at once that it was a resolution of endorsement. General Warren Kiefer, of Springfield, rose and moved that all resolutions go to the committee without debate, which was adopted. Mr. Grosvenor then read the following resolution:

THE RESOLUTION.

"Recognizing, as the Republicans of Ohio always have, the gifted and tried statesman of the Republican party of other States, loyal and unfaltering in their devotion to the success of the organization in 1888 under whatever standard bearer the Republican National Convention may select, they have just pride in the career of John Sherman, as a member of the Republican party and a statesman of fidelity, large experience and great ability. His career as a statesmen began with the birth of the Republican party; he has grown and developed with the growth of that orgapization; his genius and patriotism are stamped upon the records of the party and the statutes and constitution of the country, and believing that his nomination for the office of President would be wise and judicious, we respectfully present his name to the people of the United States as a candidate, and announce our hearty support of him for that office.

THE OPPOSITION.

No sooner was this read than Colonel J. G. Munson, of Zanesville, rose and offered the ultimatum of the anti-Sherman men in the following resolution:

"Resolved, That we hereby pledge the united and enthusiastic support of the Republicans of Ohio to the nominee of the next National Republican Convention, and in this connection, we call the attention of the Republicans of Ohio to the eminent services and splendid career of Hon. John Sherman."

THE CONVENTION ADJOURNS.

Both resolutions were referred without debate, and the convention adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow. The two resolutions above given are now in the hands of the Committee on Resolutions. The opponents of the Sherman endorsement offer to let the second resolution pass unanimously, but declare that they will fight the Grosvenor resolution on the floor of the convention to the bitter end. The committee went into session at seven o'clock, and will be at work most of the night.

Good Work in Ohio.

CONVENTION HALL, TOLEDO, O., July 28.—The republican state convention was called to order at 10 o'clock by Temporary Chairman Ryan. The committee on credentials and rules presented their report, which was adopted, and ex-Governor Charles Foster, chairmon of the committee on resolutions, read the platform.

The tariff plank was received with loud cheers, all received more or less applause. When the endorsement of Governor Foraker's administration was reached, the convention cheered as one man, many rising to their feet and swinging hats, etc. Loud calls were made for Foraker. The rebel flag clause revived the demonstration. When the last resolution, the famous Sherman endorsement, was reached, the cheering broke out again, and on a call from a delegate three cheers were given for Sherman, before the reading could continue. Its close was marked by wild cheers. A motion was made to adopt the whole platform by acclamation. It was done unanimously, without a dissenting vote. Tremendous cheering followed, and loud calls were made for Sherman. He did not appear, and the report of the committee on permanent organization was read and adopted. Hon. John Sherman was made permanent chairman. A committee of three was appointed to conduct Mr. Sherman to the chair.

The convention was in a good humor, being jubilant over the extinction of the opposition to the endorsement resolution, and cheered Senator Sherman to the echo as he took the platform. His speech was listened to with the closest attention. In thanking the convention for its endorsement, Mr. Sherman said that while he knew that at present it was purely a matter of sentiment, he valued the action of the convention as much as if it secured his election. At the same time he recognized the fact that the question rested with the districts not merely of the state, but of the country. He believed in the district rule just as he did in 1880, when that belief cut off his hopes of success. The speech was received with every demonstration of applause, especially his disclaimer that the endorsement resolution had any binding effect upon the district conventions next year. He received a tremendous round of cheers at the close.

Dr. Graydon, of Cincinnati, then took the platform and nominated Governor Foraker for his second term in a ten minute speech. There was much cheering and the motion was carried by acclamation amid a whirlwind of cheers.

The ticket was completed as follows: Lieutenant governor, Capt. W. C. Lyon; supreme judge, long term, William T. Spear; supreme judge, short term, F. J. Dickman; state auditor, E. W. Poe; state treasurer, J. A. Brown; attorney general, D. K. Watson; member of the board of public works, C. A. Fleckinger. The convention then, at 3.30 o'clock, adjourned sine die.

Fatal Fire.

CHICAGO, July 29.—About 2.40 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the bakery of Chris. Essen, 3165 Archer avenue, and was attended with terrible results. The building was three stories high. The first floor was used as the bake shop and the upper floors were occupied as tenements. There were five families in the building and all were killed or injured.

Mary Trudeau, 2 years old, was burned to death in her mother's arms coming down the rope.

Mrs. Mary Trudeau was fatally burned and died at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Mary Blake was badly burned and fell from the second story window.

Nelson Trudeau jumped from a third-story window and was hurt interally.

Mr. Bonnau was fatally burned.

Annie Bonna was seriously hurt.

Annie Brauld was suffocated, but will recover.

John Philips was fatally suffocated.

Seven children of the Blake and Trudeau families were badly suffocated, but may recover. Christ. Essen, owner of the bakery, and Charles Ausbecker, an employe, did not answer the questions of the police satisfactorily and were locked up at the Deering street station. The fire was caused by the upsetting of a kettle of lard. The loss is $10,000.

Nelson Trudeau was removed to the hospital in a dying condition about the time his wife breathed her last. Their injured children are: Nelson, Jr., aged 12; Ella, 13; Della, 9; and Joseph 10. The children of Mrs. Blake, who are unconscious, are: Dick, Tommy and Frank. They were choked, but are recovering. A Swiss family named Hobeland, consisting of husband, wife and two children, were scorched, but not seriously hurt.

The two men, Christ. Essen and Charles Ausbrecker, arrested by Officer O'Connell, are held for criminal carelessness. The portable stove upon which Ausbrecker was heating a kettle of lard for cooking doughnuts, was located in the midst of woodwork, and when he dozed and the kettle boiled over no effort was made by either man to save the people upstairs.

Captain William H. Cowan, of truck No. 8, was terribly injuried while trying to rescue Mrs. Trudeau and her child, who were suspended between two windows from which flames were bursting. The rope with which they were being lowered had grown too short. When Cowan succeeded in cutting it all fell to the ground together. The baby was already burned to death and the mother fatally scorched, while it is not expected that Cowan will recover.

Still Hunting for McGarigle.

CHICAGO, July 28.—The trail taken by McGarigle, the boodler, is believed by the authorities to have been discovered. Facts worked up to last evening by the detectives and Sheriff Matson indicate that Drs. St. John and Dell aided in the escape. Both doctors are connected with the college of physicians and surgeons, an institution located directly across the street from the county hospital, of which McGarigle was warden while acting as the treasurer of the boodlers' pool. Dr. St. John is part owner of the schooner Edward R. Blake, which suddenly discharged a cargo Saturday, and after the doctor had had an interview with the captain cleared immediately, the ostensible destination being Kingston, Ont.

During Saturday afternoon Dr. St. John was closeted at the jail with McGarigle for several hours. It was that night the missing boodler escaped from the sheriff, running, it is believed, for two blocks from his house to the lake shore, where a life boat from the schooner was waiting. Dr. St. John was waiting and Dr. Dell was absent from his home Saturday night, and they have steadfastly refuse to tell where they were. The sheriff has the yacht Moffat following in the wake of the Blake. But there is a question whether the pursuers have a right to board the schooner. It is stated that McGarigle has with him four trusty, stalwart friends, and even if overtaken will not surrender without a fight, which might result in loss of life.

Maryland Democrats.

BALTIMORE, July 27.—The Democratic State Convention this afternoon on the sixth ballot nominated Elihu E. Jackson, of Wicomico County, for Governor. A recess was then taken until 8 o'clock in the evening, and on reassembling Hon. William Pinckney White was unanimously nominated for Attorney General, and L. Victor Baughman, of Frederick County, was nominated for Comptroller. Mr. Baughman is President of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. Mr. Jackson is engaged in the lumber trade, and his business has grown to large proportions. He is highly esteemed in the Eastern Shore section of the State, where he has lived all his life. The ticket as nominated, it is declared, will heal all dissensions in the party.

The platform adopted endorses the administration of President Cleveland; urges the delegates to Congress to work for a reduction of taxation; opposes the introduction of foreign paupers and convicts, and advocates an election law embodying the features of the Tilden law, and such other provisions as will assure purity of elections.

The President.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—A delegation from Kansas City called at the White House to-day to invite the president to visit that city during his Western tour in October. The President accepted for a date to be hereafter fixed, between the 1st and 15th of October.

Briefs.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—For the first time during the present week there was no business at the white house to-day, which made it necessary for the president to come into the city. Therefore he spent the entire day at his country home (Oak View), where the temperature is said to be at least ten degrees lower than at the white house, and where he is able to endure the present hot spell with decidedly more comfort than is possible at his official residence. The president will remain at Oak View pretty much all the time until he leaves the capital for his southern trip in October. He may come into the city once or twice a week to attend cabinet meetings, but it is not believed that these meetings will be continued with any regularity during the summer.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The committee appointed to examine into the accounts of George W. Evans, the disbursing officer of the department of the interior, completed its work to-day and submitted a report to Secretary Lamar. During the four years of Mr. Evans' administration of the office he has disbursed $21,754,363, and the committee found every cent duly accounted for. During the last twenty years this office has disbursed upwards of $90,000,000 without the loss of a penny. The office is entirely separate from the office of financial clerk of the patent office.

HAZLETON, Pa., July 29.—A Lehigh Valley passenger train and a New Jersey Central coal train collided to-day at Pond Creek Junction, about four miles north of here. Both engines were wrecked and several cars were thrown over the embankment. Harry Keiper, of White Haven, a brakeman, had both legs broken and sustained internal injuries, but no other person was seriously injured. The collision was due to Telegraph Operator Shortz failure to stop the passenger train. Shortz, who lives at Elizabeth, New Jersey, fled after the accident.

Cleveland Cries "Enough."

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The president to-day received a telegram from Senator Harris saying that a committee of 100 citizens of Memphis was coming to Washington to invite the president to visit that city during his western trip. The president telegraphed to Senator Harris in reply to use his influence to prevent any movement of the sort. He said that while he will always be pleased to see the people of Tennessee at the capitol he thinks that they ought to be spared the long journey to Washington during the heated term on a mission of this sort when a written invitation sent by mail would be as effective and as much appreciated. A similar answer will be sent to other western cities where arrangements are being made to send invitation-bearing committees to Washington. It is stated at the white house that the president will give the same consideration to the invitations received by mail as to those borne by the committees, no matter how large and impressive the latter may be.

The Old Folks at Home,

Or elsewhere, need a tonic now and then to sustain them under growing infirmities. No safer or more thorough invigorant for age and the delicate can be found than Hostetter's stomach Bitters, a seasonable medicine in those ailments of commonest occurrence—liver complaint, indigestion and bowel disorders; a pure botanic safeguard against malaria, and a reliable means of counteracting rheumatism. To the convalescent, it is a valuable aid in the recovery of strength, and to the debilitated, nervous invalid it yields tranquil slumber and renewed appetite—two prime factors in the restoration of vigor. Being of purely botanic origin, it is free from those objections urged against mineral remedies difficult or impossible of assimilation by the system, and which impair the tone of the stomach, which the Bitters, on the contrary, strengthens and regulates. It is endorsed and prescribed by the medical fraternity.

—Mr. Robert Hepburn met with a slight accident on Tuesday of this week. He was loading or unloading timbers on Sellers' farm, near Buffalo Run, when one of the timbers slipped striking his arm and dislocating his shoulder. Another man was also slightly hurt by the same timber. Mr. Hepburn, though quite an aged gentleman, has recovered sufficiently to resume work as usual.

The New School Year.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS WHICH WE SUBMIT TO THE CONSIDERATION OF LOCAL EDUCATORS.

The work of fixing up the grounds around the new school building is not advancing as rapidly as the circumstances seem to require. The schools will begin in six weeks from this date and much work remains to be done. It will be quite necessary to begin all the schools at she same time, so let none of the work be postponed until too late. We suggest to the honorable school board that the porch at the entrance be made larger. The children sometimes must stay on this porch a certain time before being admitted into the building and it is too small to accommodate more than three or four. Then a railing should be built around it, adding a little ornament to what is certainly a very plain exterior and also preventing the smaller children falling from it. We suggest these additions, not from any spirit of criticism, because the building is excellent, but because they occur to us. Possible the Board has them already in contemplation.

It will be necessary not only to rearrange the grades suitable to the new conditions, but also to divide the town into two school districts in a way that will direct the children which school building they are expected to go to; governed, of course by their convenience of access. Principal Lieb has such plans already matured and they are doubtless such as will recommend themselves to the Board. They provide that High street running east and west shall be a dividing line, at least from the railroad east as far as the jail—pupils north of it going to the old building and those south of it to the new building. Pupils living west of the railroad, in that portion of the town divided by High street, will go to the old stone building, while those living west of the jail, about as far north as Howard, will find it most convenient to go to the new building. It is also suggested that the children living in the vicinity of Reynolds' avenue and further out in that part of town, (who will, of course, go to the new school building) will find that the road beyond the burnt mill, connecting with Logan street, will be the best way for them to travel. This will necessitate some repairs to the road—probably the laying of a boardwalk. We have not given the road any special examination and cannot state definitely just what will be required.

Remarkably Salubrious.

While the mid-summer reports of increased death rates are proceeding from every section of the country, is satisfactory to note that Bellefonte and the immediate vicinity enjoys complete immunity from any such depressing condition of affairs. Indeed, if our own observation may be considered of weight as bearing on the subject we can state that the death rate in this community, this summer, has been less than at any other season of the year. Several days at a time will elapse during which we will not be called upon to record one death. While throughout most of the country this is the undertakers' harvest time, here they are enjoying a summer's recreation. This leads us to believe that while Centre county is always, climatically and topographically, one of the most salubrious localities in the world, it is peculiarly so in mid-summer.

His Eye Injured.

A son of Jesse Underwood, of Port Matilda, met with a serious accident on Saturday, July 23, from which he is still suffering very severely. The horse which he was driving ran away and in endeavoring to catch the animal the end of the strap came in contact with his left eye, pushing the eye-ball from its socket. The eye was replaced, although it cannot be ascertained definitely at present whether the sight will be permanently injured or not. The young man says that he can distinguish daylight from darkness throught it, which is a hopeful sign. He is about twenty-two years of age and in every respect a very excellent young gentleman, which leads us to hope that his recovery will be speedy and complete.

A Worthy Candidate.

'Squire Kuhn of Eagleville, and Robt. Cook, Jr., of Howard, called on us last Friday, escorted by Capt. Harry Simler. Mr. Cook is a candidate for the nomination for Sheriff of Centre County on the Republican ticket. We should be glad see him nominated and elected. We have known him, boy and man, for 35 years, and in all that time he has been the same good, honest, straight going fellow. The Republicans of this county cannot place a cleaner man on the ticket than Rob Cook, and if he is nominated and elected, he will make a faithful, efficient Sheriff. He has our warmest wishes for success.—Philipsburg Ledger.

—Mr. Harris, Third Assistant Postmaster General, says that the new series of postage stamps soon to be issued will vary little from the designs now in use. The vignettes will not be changed at all, and the portraits on the new stamps will be identical with those now in use. The chief object of the change will be to make the new series of adhesive stamps conform to those embossed upon the envelopes now issued from the department. To this end there will be several changes in the colors employed. The most noticeable of these will be the two-cent stamp. This is now brown. In the new series it will be of millori green.

The DuBois Case.

This interesting case in which the Commonwealth is interested on one side, and John E. DuBois, executor and heir of John DuBois, deceased, on the other, says the Clearfield Raftsman Journal, is now being heard before Hon. D. L. Krebs, without the aid of a jury.

The Commonwealth is represented by McEnally & McCurdy, while Mr. DuBois is represented by Murray & Gordon, Hon. W. P. Jenks, of Brookville and Hon. George A. Jenks, of Washington, D. C.

The case is in the form of an appeal from the assessment of a collateral inheritance tax of 5 per cent. Some time after the death of John DuBois, A. W. Lee was chosen appraiser by George M. Ferguson, then Register and Recorder of this county. Mr. Lee appraised the property at three million, three hundred and ten thousand dollars, but attorneys of the two parties afterwards came together and compromised the appraisement at $2,800,000. Upon this amount the Register assessed a collateral inheritance tax of 5 per cent. John E. DuBois admitted his liability upon $70,000 of this sum but resisted the rights of the Commonwealth as to the balance, by virtue of a deed having been made to him by his uncle for the entire property, prior to his death, and for which he gave a nominal consideration.

By an easy computation it will be found that the State, in case it should win the suit, will receive the sum of $140,000 from the estate and upon this sum the Register and Recorder of this county will receive 5 per cent., yielding him the very snug fee of $7,000.

It is, therefore, not only owing to the amount of money involved but to the legal questions that arise, a most interesting case and is attracting widespread attention among the legal profession.

—A Huntingdon dispatch says that Henry C. Townsend, J. Sergeant Price and Joseph A. Brinton, trustees under the deed of Sarah B. Vansychel, of Philadelphia, have issued an execution against A. Porter Wilson, William A. Wilson and Annie D. Wilson, of that town, on judgments and mortgages aggregating $22,000. Sheriff Isenberg will sell the property of the defendants on August 19. The real estate consists of Farmers' and Exchange hotels in Huntingdon, the Warm Springs hotel, five miles from there and thirteen tracks of land in various sections of Huntingdon county.

Four Brothers, aged 274 Years.

The above figures represent the aggregate ages of Mr. Daniel Garman and his three brothers, all of whom are now in Bellefonte. There is Mr. Henry Garman, of Jersey Shore, who bears up under the weight of 83 years. Samuel Garman, of Renovo, is 63 years of age, and M. B. Garman, of Philadelphia, represents 61 years. Mr. Daniel Garman, our townsman, is 67 years of age. These visiting brothers expect to remain only a few days, but into the meeting will be condensed about as much pleasure as many people would find in a month's visit.

An Important Law.

The following law should be read and noted:

"It shall be the duty of the Commissioners of the several counties of this commonwealth to appoint a person, under oath, whose duty it shall be to ferret out and bring to punishment all persons who either wilfully or otherwise cause the burning of timber lands and to take measures to have such fires extinguished where it can be done, the expense thereof to be paid out of the county treasury, the unseated land tax to be the first applied to such expense."

—All the railroads centering at Pittsburg lack a sufficient supply of cars and if work should be resumed in the coke regions there would be a greater scarcity. This fact has led to the suggestion that car works be built in Tyrone. Bellefonte has car works which have been unoccupied for several years and can be purchased at one-third their actual value or their original cost. Cannot they be put in operation and made generally profitable to the community and especially profitable to their operators?

—A call has been issued for a convention of what is known as the Union Labor Party of Pennsylvania, to assemble at Williamsport, Pa., on Wednesday, September 7, at 10 o'clock a. m. The call is signed by Ferdinand Kreiner, of Bradford, who is the chairman. T. P. Rynder, chairman of the Greenback Labor party, unites in this call, urging the members of his party to send representatives to the convention and, if possible, to unite with the Union Labor party of the State.

—The Inter-State Commerce Commission has decided that railroad companies may issue mileage tickets, the charges for which shall be reasonable and just and free from unjust discrimination. The army of commercial travelers will hail this decision with gladness, as any reduction from the full rate fare in any shape will help swell their commissions.

—The firemen are discussing the expediency of having a firemen's demonstration in Bellefonte when the Undine's new hose house is dedicated.

Death's Harvest.

PHILIPSBURG AND SNOW SHOE EACH LOSES A VALUABLE CITIZEN.

Mr. L. W. Rittenhouse, of Philipsburg, who was recorded as being seriously ill on Thursday last, died in the evening of that day. Mr. Rittenhouse once lived here and he was also, at one time, a citizen of Lewistown. We are told that before the war he was elected burgess of Bellefonte. Consequently, he was widely and favorably known and many friends will mourn the sad affliction which his death causes to his surviving family and other relatives. His immediate family includes his wife and several children. Funeral at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mr. George Roch, the barber at Snow Shoe, died this morning of consumption. He leaves quite a large family to mourn the separation which death causes. The funeral was held in Northumberland, to which place his remains were taken.

How to Preserve Green Corn.

What we shall relate herewith is said to have been told by an Indian missionary. Doubtless, some of our readers will find it of interest: "When your corn is in good eating condition, pluck the ears and remove all the husks but the last layer next the corn, being careful not to expose any of the grains. Then tie a string tightly around this husk at the end where the silk is; then take one-half gallon of clean hickory ashes, put it in three or four gallons of water in a deep vessel, and while it is boiling dip the corn into it slowly eight or ten times, holding by the string you have tied around it. Hang away in a dark, dry place. Whenever you want roasting ears you will have them as fresh as when they came from the stalk. Indians preserve hundreds of bushels in this way without a single failure.

First Pa Cavalry.

The First Pennsylvania Cavalry Reserve Association will hold its second annual reunion at Connellsville, Fayette county, October 13th and 14th. It will consist of a business meeting, banquets, parade and camp-fire. Ex-Governr Curtin, Gov. Beaver, Gen. Gregg and the much honored mother of the first commander, Mrs. Bayard are expected to be present. Connellsville is on the B. & O. railroad, 58 miles south of Pittsburg. The following are the names of the officers of the Association: John P. Taylor, president; David Gardner, 1st vice president; S. T. Carpenter, 2d vice president; W. S. Craft, 3d vice president; W. V. B. Conflin, secretary; W. S. Foster, treasurer and corresponding secretary, 133 Wylie avenue, Pittsburg.

Passes for the P. & R. Employes.

Before the close of work notices were posted about the P. & R. shops announcing that the pass system in vogue before the shops went into the Coal and Iron company's hands would again go into effect. By this system employes can secure passes once a month, if they desire them, to and from any station on the line of the company's road by calling at the office of the superintendent. This order was hailed with delight and has made the company popular with the men. Through it they can at least once a month take excursions at a comparatively small cost, the railroad fares always being the chief item of expense.—Reading Eagle.

Appropriate Resolution.

At a recent meeting of the Coronet H. and L. Company the following was unanimously adopted:

Resloved, That a vote of thanks of Coronet Hook and Ladder Company, of Bellefonte, Pa., be and is hereby extended to all the ladies and gentlemen who so ably assisted us at our late festival, and also extend our thanks to the commissioners of Centre county for the use of the court yard.

H. S. Hale, President,
W. F. Harris, Secretary.

—The Saratoga Jenkins writes to the New York Times that there are 53 young ladies at that fashionable resort "whose marriage settlement in each case will not be less than $1,000,000, and that at the hop at the United States on Friday evening was one quadrille set in which the four young ladies represented the portly sum of $20,000,000." To this it is added that "each of these young ladies will, in the natural order of things, come into possession of $5,000,000 in her own right. Not one of them is engaged, or, so far as is known, has a suitor at all preferred."

—We are requested to state that the carpet for the Y. M. C. A. audience hall has been finished. It is the work of the W. C. T. U., a committee of which had the matter in charge There are a few subscriptions toward the weaving of the carpet which have not yet been paid. Persons who have not paid are requested to send the amount of such subscriptions to Mrs. James Harris as soon as possible, so that there may be no debt for this important and beautiful improvement.

—As there are an unusual number of people suffering from rheumatism the present summer, they may be interested in learning that a leading medical journal says that oil of wintergreen mixed with an equal quantity of olive oil, applied externally to inflamed joints affected by acute rheumatism, affords instant relief and having a pleasant oder, its use is very agreeable.

A Case of Deafness Cured.

Office of Shaw & Baldwin's Wholesale Notion House, Toledo, O., Dec. 11, '79.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.—Dear Sirs: About three months ago, noticing a letter addressed to you in the Bee from Gen. Slevin, in reference to the cure of his son by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure, we were induced to commence the use of it for our daughter Nellie now fourteen years old, who has been suffering from catarrh for about eight years, during which time she has been treated by one of the best physicians in the city. We have also tried the use of almost all the known remedies for catarrh, with no more success than temporary relief. Many nights have we laid awake to hold her mouth open to keep her from strangling. Her hearing had also become affected. We were afraid that she would never recover. We have now used six bottles of Hall's Catarrh Cure, and we believe Nellie to be entirely cured. In a few days after commencing the use of it we noticed a decided change for the better, and from that right along she has improved, until now she breathes as easily as any one. She sleeps well and her hearing is perfectly good. We feel that the disease is entirely removed. We write this unsolicited letter, feeling that it is due you, and with the hope that others may be benefitted in like manner. We can hardly realize that such a change could be effected in so short a time after battling with the disease so long. We are still using the remedy at intervals, as it seems to build up her system. You are at liberty to use this in any manner you see proper. We are yours, truly,

MR. and MRS. S. BALDWIN,

—By the opening of Armor street, between Curtin and Linn streets, a very important improvement has been made to that part of the town. Before that it was necessary for persons who journeyed in that direction to return by the same way that they went. Now they can go out Linn, cross on Armor street to Curtin and then return by the last mentioned thoroughfare. It would be a further improvement to open Armor street its entire length.

A PROHIBITION RALLY.

A POWERFUL AND ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY REV W. H. H. SNYDER.

The Presbyterian church contained a large congregation on Sunday evening, though many people were kept away because they imagined the temperature was too warm; but such folks were greatly mistaken for the

TEMPERATURE WAS DELIGHTFUL,

A breeze, as cool and refreshing as a May morning passing through the church, and proving quite exhilerating. The ministers present were Rev. W. H. H. Snyder, Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., and Rev. Chas. Steck. Just here we will remind you that they constitute of ministers. It would be difficult to find in Pennsylvania three men in any profession possessing greater mental force or higher scholarly attainments than the three we have named. Dr. Monroe announced a hymn and invoked Divine blessing; also reading numerous passages bearing on temperance. His prayer contained special petitions for victory in Texas next Thursday.

Rev. W. H. H. Snyder delivered the sermon and the mere mention of this fact, is sufficient to assure our readers that it was, in every respect, a excelling, in many ways, any similar effort ever heard from a Bellefonte pulpit. The reverend gentleman is wonderfully fluent in language, elegant in diction, bright in thought and original in style and conception. His sermon was enriched and embellished with sparkling sentences and apt illustration. His text was chosen from Exodus 11.5—

STRONG AND ELOQUENT DISCOURSE,

"And all the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die."

The words referred to the worst of the plagues. The destroying angel waved his wing over Egypt and there was mourning and desolation. A far worse plague broods over our own land. His name is Strong Drink. Not only does he desolate part of the land, but all of it. His visit is not only for one night, but it is repeated every day and night. The great statesman Gladstone says it is worse than pestilence and famine. Intemperance slays its hundreds of millions. The distinguished statistician, Thos. Dix, estimates its victims as high as 17,000,000,000. But without lingering on the past or calculating the future, let us consider practically: How can the crime be exterminated? He recounted the various agencies which have been employed for this purpose, but despite all of them, there is more liquor now sold than ever before.

The irrepressible conflict is approaching. It may be a long battle, but in the end intemperance will go down. Next Thursday Texas will vote on Prohibition and already there is prohibition in five States. Nine-tenths of Georgia and many portions of the South enjoy prohibition laws.

It is admitted to be evil—why should it not be banished? The old theory was that only the abuse of the use of intoxicants is injurious; now the unalterable conclusion is that any use is wrong. Christ is our only faultless model. Alcohol, as such, has its legitimate use; and the position cannot be taken that it does not possess merit as a medicine in certain instances; or that it may not be used sacramentally.

We base our total abstinence on the ground—

1st., of expediency. The prevalent habit of excess in America warns us of this. Here a touching incident was related.

2d., Because alcoholic drinks are so greatly adulterated.

3d., The pure juice of the vine is so rare that it can seldom be obtained.

4th., Many persons have inherited or acquired an immoderate appetite for it.

Then he drew a thrilling picture of the blessings of the Gospel and the curses of rum being sent forth to heathen countries on board the same ship. He further characterized them as the "Bibles of heaven and the bottles of hell." The latter are having more potent effect than the former. The sermon contained statements of the number of God's own people who are falling before the tempter, a reminder that nothing can be hoped for from politicians and closed with words of special and strong exortation to young men to abstain.

Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., stated that his position in regard to the wine of the Bible and for sacramental use is different from that entertained by the eloquent speaker. His remarks were forcible and entertaining.

Rev. Chas. Steck offered a very earnest supplication, a collection was taken, and the service ended with the doxology and benediction.

—There is a young gentleman now we believe in Bellefonte who will soon begin the practice of the medical profession under auspices peculiarly favorable to success. We have the testimony of the Principal of the Bellefonte Academy that he was one of the brightest youths who ever attended that institution. He has been at a homœpathic medical college in Philadelphia during two years and in another year will be a thoroughly equipped physician. He has the elements of true success in his composition. He has been assisting Dr. R. L. Dartt this summer. We refer to Mr. Andrew G. Lieb, brother of Prof. David Lieb.

Narrow Escape from a Disastrous Accident.

An accident of the most serious character might have occurred at Dale's crossing, on the B., N. and L. railroad, on Monday afternoon. The passenger train which leaves Bellefonte at 2 o'clock p. m. was sweeping along at a high rate of speed. At that point the line of road can be seen quite a distance and there is no very great danger of accident. But ahead of the train and directly onto the track moved a spring wagon containing two men, a woman and a child, the horses which were attached to it walking very slowly. The danger ahead was noticed by the engineer and the engine whistle pierced the air with its greatest capacity. This startled the horses and they sprang forward and towards the side of the road, effectually clearing the track just in time to escape destruction. The suddenness of the shrill whistle and the plunging of the animals also frightened the men and they leaped from the wagon. One of them whose name is David Blair alighted on the back of his head, rendering him unconscious. The train stopped and the man was lifted from the road side. He soon recovered consciousness. Meanwhile, the horses continued to plunge, but fortunately became detached from the wagon, which probably saved the woman and boy still in the wagon from serious injuries. The wagon was damaged, but the horses were afterwards caught without being injured. All the paties were taken to Lemont on the train, where the injured man was attended to by Dr. Dale. We hear that his wounds are not considered serious.

The parties were crossing the track without giving any thought to the fact that trains must be looked for and avoided. People along the line of the railroad, especially in crossing it, should be very cautious, as eternal vigilance in this regard is the price of safety.

A Bridge Moved.

The large bridge in the Allegheny mountains at Summerhill, which was to have been removed to the temporary trestle work during the past week, was moved on Sunday. A similar bridge was moved at Johnstown some time ago. The bridge at Summerhill was shorter than the one at Johnstown, but its removal is regarded as a greater piece of engineering.

Piles were driven into the ground until the solid rock was reached, and a temporary trestle was constructed on which the bridge was to be placed, Heavy iron rollers were put under the bridge and four windlasses were used in moving it. The removal was expected to have been done in twenty minutes, but instead four hours were consumed. The rope on the block and tackle broke, delaying the work considerably, and much dificulty was experienced in making the wedges hold. However, it is regarded as a wonderful feat to remove a bridge in so short a time, and certainly is a triumph of modern mechanics.

A Long Runaway.

Under the above title the Lock Haven Democrat relates the following: "On Saturday night Elmer Weaver and others drove from Rebersburg, Centre county, to Jacksonville, to a festival. Their team consisted of two horses attached to a spring wagon, which was tied near where the festival was in progress. About midnight the team frightened and broke loose, taking the road for this city, arriving here in about one hour and a half. About two o'clock on Sunday morning the police here found a team running around the city without a driver, and at once caught them and took them to Smith's livery stable, not knowing to whom they belonged. There they were taken care of until Mr. Weaver found them on Sunday forenoon. The horses were not injured, but the wagon tongue was broken off. That unfortunate vehicle was left in front of Harvey's agricultural establishment on Main street.

—The Evening Star, published in Harrisburg, was sold last Saturday on judgments held by ex-Senator William A. Wallace, A. J. Dull and John L. Butler. The entire office was offered, and E. M. Halderman, who was bidding in the interest of Wallace, outbid Leroy S. Wolfe, who was looking after the interest of A. J. Dull. The Star was knocked down to E. M. Halderman & Co. for $1800. It is understood that it has been bought for ex-Senator Wallace. who held the biggest judgment against it. The paper was placed in charge of the late proprietor, W. P. Hastings, for the present, and it is understood that arrangements for its sale or lease will be perfected soon. Several parties, among them newspaper men, are trying to secure possession.

—A dangerous counterfeit of the silver dollar is made of ground glass combined with tin, lead and other metals. Experienced bank tellers say they cannot easily detect this counterfeit. These glass dollars are brittle. If held in the palm of the hand and rapped vigorously with the handle of a knife the dollar is easily split. They have the metallic ring of the genuine dollar, are the correct size and of nearly the exact weight.

HAYES—HOFFER.

TWO OF BELLEFONTE'S YOUNG PEOPLE MARRIED ON WEDNESDAY MORNING

At 11.30 a. m. on Wednesday a wedding of more than usual interest took place in our town—especially interesting because of the prominence of the contracting parties, Dr. Robert G. H. Hayes, a young physician of rising eminence and Miss Sarah M. Hoffer, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mrs. Sarah Hoffer.

The marriage took place at the residence of the bride's mother on Logan street, in the presence of relatives and a few personal friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. H. Snyder, pastor of St. John's Reformed church, in the use of the beautiful and impressive ceremony of that church. The occasion was both solemn and joyous, our young friends starting out on the voyage of matrimonial life under the most auspicious surroundings. The warmest congratulations were tendered the bride and groom and heartiest wishes for their future happiness.

A very pleasant part of the programme was the repairing to the large double room furnished for the occasion with numerous tables tastefully adorned with flowers and china at which the guests sat—to partake of the refreshments provided. These consisted of everything that could tempt the appetite and satisfy the physical man—served in the highest style of the caterer's art.

The different apartments of the dwelling were beautifully decorated with foliage plants, trailing vines and choice flowers, which, with their delicious perfume and the lighted candelabras, made the scene at once enchanting and lovely.

As might be expected, the bride and groom were made the recipients of many and valuable gifts—ornamental and useful—which will be souvenirs to them of the most memorable event in their lives. One peculiar and charming feature of the occasion was the reception of the guests at the staircase, by Masters Harry Gerberich and J. Paul Snyder and Miss Libbie Kniseley, of Harrisburg, Pa. Our little friends performed their part very gracefully and with much credit to themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes left on the 2 p. m. train—accompanied with a party of young folks as far as Lemont—for a tour through the East to Atlantic City and other points of interest. We join with a host of friends in wishing them a safe and delightful journey and a serene and successful future.

Labor Notes

On last Friday a number of the employes of McCalmont & Co. went out on a strike. We have not learned the reason for the strike, but Mr. William Shortlidge, the manager, professes to look upon it as a satisfactory termination of a difficulty, and has refused to arbitrate. He states that on Wednesday the Pennsylvania Railroad Company informed him that they would need no more stone, hence it was his intention to reduce the force as soon as he could do so with fairness to them.

Some of the employes of Mr. Fearon Mann at the Axe Works are also striking. It is because of a difference in opinion between him and the Knights of Labor. Mr. Mann considers that as the works belong to him, he should be permitted to run them in his own way.

The difficulty at the works of the Juniata Mining Company has been adjusted and the men have returned to work.

Monday Night's Meeting of Council

The meeting of council on Monday evening did not seem to be of more than a half hour's duration. After the minutes were read by Clerk Mitchell Mr. Mark Cooney, who was present, asked if East High street is to be opened. This question had been asked of former councils, but it being for the first time brought to the consideration of the present council, its consideration was referred to the Street committee and the borough solicitor.

A report made up by the Street committee, borough solicitor and the borough engineer was read, containing the names of parties who must repair boardwalks, gutters, etc. The report was received and adopted and the parties will be notified to make repairs within thirty days.

It was reported that the Undine hose house will be completed next week.

Grove Meeting.

A meeting will be held (D. V.) in grove of Wm. Resides, 3 miles from Unionville, commencing Aug. 9th and to continue over the following Sabbath. Revs. L. Osler, I. R. Gates, J. H. Hartman, S. Eberson and others are expected to be present.

The doctrine of Christ's personal and soon coming, with events connected therewith, will be among the subjects presented.

All are invited. M. L. JACKSON.

—At 11.30 o'clock Wednesday Dr. R. G. H. Hayes, a popular young physician of this place, was united in marriage to Miss Sallie M. Hoffer, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. H. H. Snyder, pastor of the Reformed church, at the residence of the bride's mother. The groom is a worthy, prominent gentleman, with a promising career before him. The bride is beautiful and accomplished, acknowledged to be one of the belles of Bellefonte. The happy couple departed on the 2 o'clock p. m. train for a wedding journey. They have the best wishes of the REPUBLICAN.

Mrs. Ruth Powers, of East Lamb street, departed on the morning train, on Saturday, in company with a friend, to visit in Williamsport, Harrisburg, Philadelphia and probably Elmira. She expects to be away from home about two weeks and we hope she will have a pleasant trip.

The Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Tribune says: "Mrs. R. M. Magee, a very pleasant and agreeable lady, whose residence is in Bellefonte, and who in her girlhood days was one of the belles of our town, is spending a few days with the families of Mrs Annie Ray and D. T. Caldwell.

We were greatly favored on Monday by a call from Rev. Mr. Ebersol, who is the energetic and earnest pastor of the Second Advent church of Snow Shoe He filled two appointments on Sunday near Unionville. He expects to take charge of a congregation near Boston, leaving for that city about the middle of this month.

—Saturday evening was perhaps the greatest of the season in the quantity of ice cream disposed of and, of course, consumed. Despite the fact that a great festival was in progress, in addition to all the usual ice cream parlors being in full blast, many persons were compelled to wait for a long time before they could get seats and be served. We believe that if statistics were at hand they would show that Bellefonte is the champion ice cream town in the United States. That is all because there are so many charming maidens, and the way into the ice cream parlor is the open sesame to their smiles and good graces.

—When the residence of Mr. Adam Yearick, near Jacksonville, caught fire on Saturday morning, its occupant, Mrs. John Yearick, was away from home attending the market in Lock Haven. Some of his children were in the house. As an example of the extent of his loss—on which there was no insurance—we may mention that one article alone—the sewing machine—was a handsome cabinet instrument valued at over $100. The building was insured in the Penns Valley company for $700.

—Zenas L. Hoover, who was drowned in Oregon, the announcement of which was made in the DAILY NEWS of Tuesday, was in Bellefonte not more than two months ago, at which time we had the pleasure of meeting him. He was a lumberman and a gentleman of excellent education. A very readable letter from him, written to Isaac Haupt, was published in this paper some time ago. He leaves a family. His former home was in Clearfield county.

Change of Examination Dates.

On account of the delegate election to be held at the school house in Unionville Borough on Saturday, August 6th, I will hold the examination for the township of Union and Unionville borough at the school house in the latter place on Friday, August 5th, and for the township of Huston at the school house at Julian on Saturday, August 6th.

—A hop will be given at the Bellefonte rink this (Thursday) evening for the benefit of the Kismet Club. Her Majesty's Royal Orchestra will furnish the music. Because of the short time at the disposal of the managers of this affair no invitations have been sent out, but care will be taken that the best of order is maintained. Let all who love the dance attend. Tickets only 50 cents.

—The sermon preached by Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage, on Sunday last, on the "Open Gates of Heaven," was grand in its vigor of expression and sublimity of thought. The Reverend Doctor believes and illustrated how every one will continue in Heaven the same pursuits in which they delight here, only on a scale so much more extensive. Talmage is the prince of preachers.

—The large open space, covered with a grassy lawn, at the east end of Lamb street, might be beautifully fitted up as a park. It is comparatively level, is sufficiently elevated to command a very fine view and is resorted to these fine evenings by many people. Erect a fountain in the centre and arrange seats. There cannot be too many such pleasant places of resort.

—Again we remind our readers of the festival to be given next Saturday afternoon and evening by the Buffalo Run Presbyterian Sunday-school at Hunters Station. A special train will be run from this place to the festival at half-past 7 o'clock in the evening, offering reduced excursion rates. We have not learned the exact price of the excursion.

—Several picnics are rumored to occur in the near future at Hunter's Grove, along the line of the Bellefonte and Buffalo Run railroad. On Thursday, August 11, it will be African M.E. Sunday-school. One will occur on the 4th and another on the 20th. The Reformed Sunday-school of this place is among those which will picnic.

—We are informed that the sermon on "One Hundred Years of Methodism," delivered in the Methodist church, on Sunday morning, by the pastor, Rev. D. S.
